600 DEAD IN CUBA; THOUSANDS HOMELESS

7,000 INJURED IN WESTERN SECTION REPORTS INDICATE

One Hundred Vessels Lost In Storm, Crews Drowned

HAVANA, Oct. 22.—Six hundred dead, possibly a thousand injured and seven thousand or more homeless as a result of the hurricane which swept Havana and Western Cuba on Wednesday was indicated today as reports began to trickle into the capital from the stricken provincial towns isolated since the storm.

These figures were based upon reports brought from inland towns and villages by six couriers, who traveled 150 miles on foot to bring their messages. Property damage, in the light of these reports, was estimated at $75,000,000.

A further check-up of shipping revealed that approximately 100 vessels, large and small, foundered in the storm and many of the members of the crews still are missing. It is believed that between fifty and 100 of them have been drowned.

The reports of the messengers indicated that the towns of the interior had been hit harder by the storm than Havana itself. The stricken populations appealed for immediate relief. Despite its own crippled condition, Havana organized relief expeditions and rushed them to the more stricken areas.

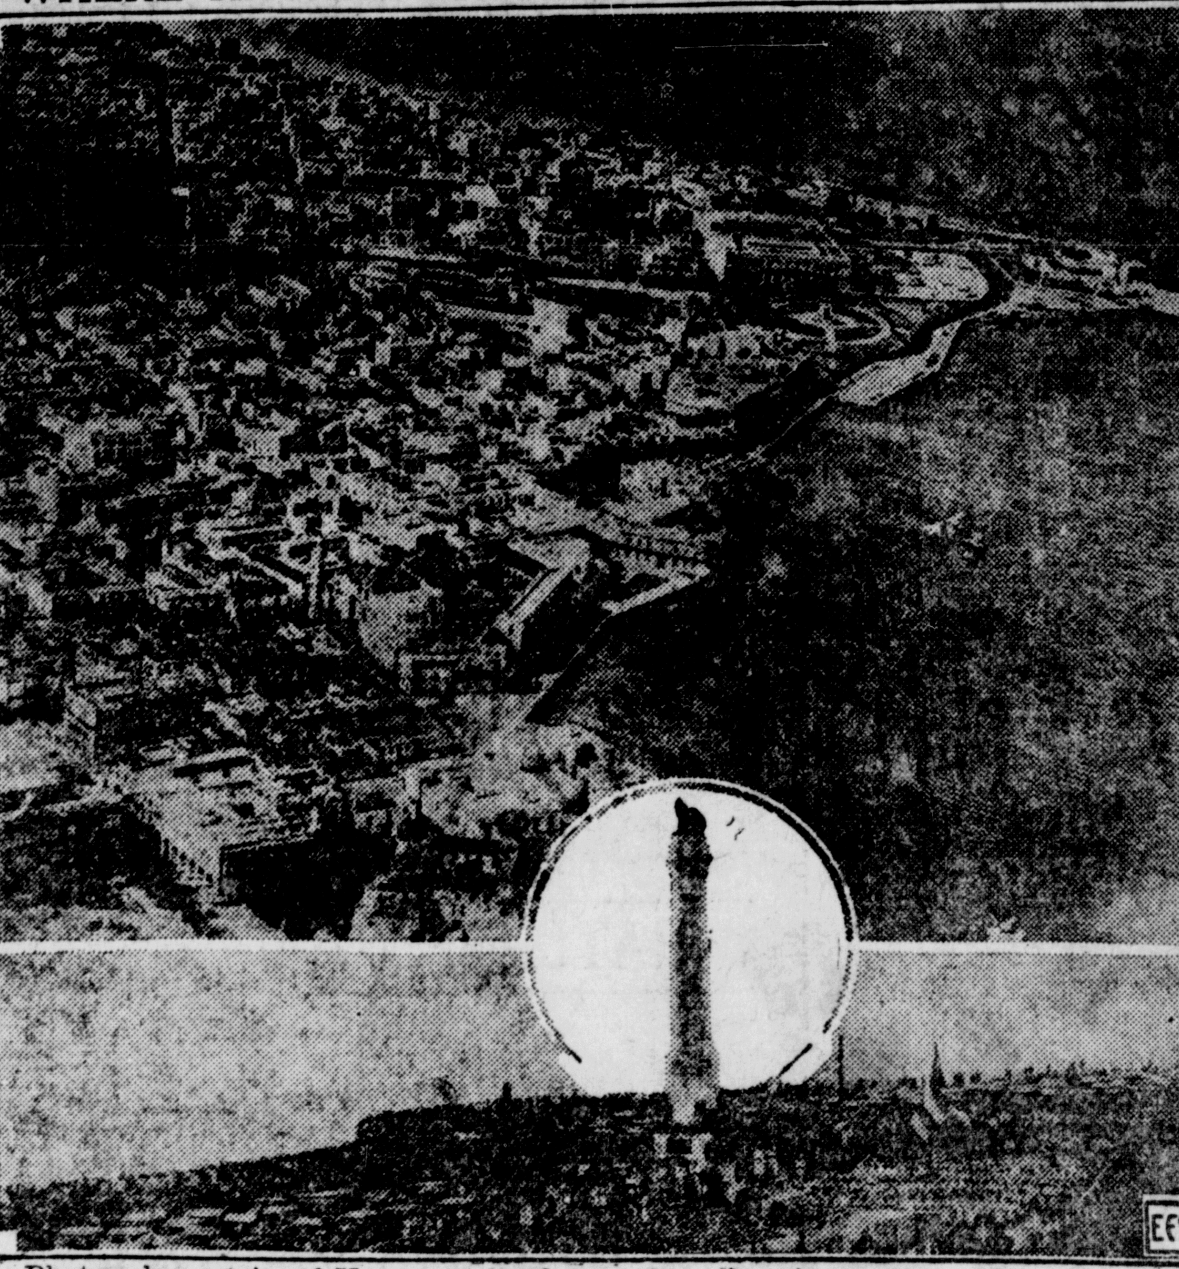

Terrible havoc in the outlying districts was indicated. Literally thousands of homes were wiped out and hundreds of families are on the verge of starvation. A condition of grave distress was reported in every section of the storm area by the couriers.

The sugar crop appears to have been particularly hard hit. Dispatches from Pinar del Rio, coming by courier, indicated the entire crop in that section was destroyed. Some sugar factories also were reported destroyed or badly damaged.

An immediate increase in the price of sugar is predicted as a result of the storm. Refugees by the hundred were arriving in Havana today from the nearer storm-swept districts. All were practically destitute and many were in a serious condition, due to hunger and exposure. Each family had its own story to tell of the horror of the storm.

The fate that overtook many of the seamen on boats which were sunk became apparent today with the appearance in the harbor of bodies badly mutilated by sharks and other huge fish. The authorities said this circumstance would make it difficult to ascertain with any degree of certainty how many lost their lives in the disaster.

WHERE HAVANA HURRICANE DID WORST DAMAGE

Photos show strip of Havana waterfront where hurricane did worst damage, and (below), Maine memorial monument, blown over in the storm. Reports have 50 dead, 600 injured, $50,000,000 property damage in Cuba as result of latest of the series of tropical disturbances.

Chicago Gang Warfare Ends In Treaty Signed By Four Leaders In Hotel Room

CHICAGO, Oct. 22.—Chicago's gang warfare has ended. An official treaty of peace was signed by the four principal leaders of gangland in a room at a downtown hotel shortly after midnight this morning. The pact was signed following a conference that lasted most of the night.

The gangsters were brought together it was reported, through the efforts of high city and county officials worried over the forthcoming election.

SEVEN AMERICANS PLUNGED IN CHANNEL WHEN PLANE FALLS

FOLKSTONE, Oct. 22.—The chief worry of the seven Americans who had a thrilling half hour in the icy waters of the English channel yesterday when an Imperial Airways aeroplane, bound for Paris, was forced down in the channel, was their luggage.

The trunks and bags of the air-traveling American were all left on board the aeroplane, which is submerged in the channel. An effort is being made to salvage the aeroplane.

None of the Americans have suffered any ill effects from their adventure.

Undaunted by their experience yesterday, Mrs. O. J. S. Bonney and her daughter, Miss Peggy Bonney, of Columbus, O., intended to continue their journey to Paris today by aeroplane. They were unable to take the morning plane, however, as they were busy buying new clothes, having to borrow costumes to wear while they shopped.

TIME DECISION TO BE LEARNED SOON

CINCINNATI, O., Oct. 22.—The interstate commerce commission is expected to hand down a decision within thirty to sixty days on the question of providing a large portion of Western Ohio with Eastern time. It was learned here today.

T. Money, attorney-examiner for the commission, who recently conducted a hearing here on the matter, today was expected to forward to the commission his report of the data gathered during the meeting. Following the decision of the commission, representatives of the cities affected by the time ruling will be given a proper allowance of time to make any objections or recommendations on that body's action, it was said.

"Scar-face Al" Capone, leader of the powerful Cicero faction, whose diplomacy is credited for the success of the peace negotiations, was a proud spokesman for the amalgamated forces of gangland today. "Yes, we have signed a treaty of peace," Capone admitted. "Tonight for the first time in two years, I will sleep without a gun under my pillow."

"I believe it will be a lasting peace. I know I won't break it and I don't believe the North side

EDITION CROWDED

Owing to the generous response by Xenia merchants toward support of the Central high school football team in the special football edition of the Evening Gazette published Thursday and because of the short space of time in which the edition was prepared it was impossible to get all the advertising sold, set for Thursday's paper. All ads that were omitted from the special edition will appear in Friday's paper. The enthusiastic support given the team and high school athletics by business men is another evidence that Xenia's heart is in the right place.

REED TAKES QUERY INTO INDIANA FOR FINAL CHAPTER

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Oct. 22.—In the role of a "political mountain" going to meet Mahomet, Senator James A. Reed, Democrat, of Missouri, brought his "one man" slush fund inquiry into Indiana today to wind up his investigation of the Hoosier senatorial campaign.

The inquiry was resumed here after a four-day session in Chicago, primarily for the purpose of giving Senator James E. Watson, Republican, of Indiana, an opportunity to defend himself against charges that the Ku Klux Klan was "going down the line" for him in the present campaign and that he was the Klan's potential candidate for the presidency in 1928.

Watson, bedfast at the Methodist hospital here as the result of an automobile accident, could not go to Chicago, so Reed brought his "committee" to the Indiana senator's bedside.

It was Reed's plan to hear Watson's statement in the latter's bed room at the Methodist hospital. There was every likelihood, meanwhile, that the Hoosier inquiry would be closed here late this afternoon, after Reed has heard Watson.

Senator Arthur S. Robinson, also a candidate for re-election, and a number of former Klan officials. The latter were expected to discuss the revelations concerning the Klan's activity in politics.

GARY FORECASTS U. S.-BRITISH STEEL HARMONY

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—In an address before the American Iron and Steel Institute today, Judge Elbert H. Gary, chairman of the United States Steel Corporation, suggested the possibility of a concordant between the steelmakers of the United States and Europe.

"We have heard considerable discussion," said Judge Gary, "relating to anticipated competition between iron and steel manufacturers of the United States and foreign competitors but it is believed that, should it become necessary, an international conference will be held between these interests and a full, open discussion indulged in after which a fair understanding could be reached."

"Of course, no agreement between the different interests relating to prices could legally be entered into without sanction of our law administrators, but, if necessity arose, it is thought the approval of the public authority of the country might be obtained."

FAIL TO IDENTIFY MURDERED WOMAN

CINCINNATI, O., Oct. 22.—The murdered woman found Wednesday night in the Big Miami River near here remained unidentified today.

County authorities were trying to check up the disappearance of Miss Theresa Schey, 24, Hamilton, O., nurse, in the belief that she may be the slain woman.

Miss Schey, according to Mrs. Hattie Clark, Hamilton policeman, left her home there two weeks ago to visit a brother in Lima. She never reached Lima, it was reported. She had $165 at that time, it was said.

DENY RECONCILIATION PARIS, Oct. 22.—Members of Prince Carol's household at Neully today denied reports from Belgrade that the prince now is visiting there with his sister, Queen Marie of Serbia. Prince Carol is still at Neully, they said.

F. H. DEAN ENDORSED BY REPUBLICAN COMMITTEE FOR COMMON PLEAS JUDGE

The strenuous campaign being waged by Attorney Frank H. Dean, Republican candidate for Common Pleas Court Judge on the non-partisan judicial ticket at the November 2 election, received additional impetus when his candidacy was given the unanimous endorsement of the Greene County Republican Executive Committee, at a meeting Thursday afternoon.

Mr. Dean is a practicing lawyer in Xenia for many years and has been a life long resident of Greene County, and is well fitted for the position he seeks.

In a resolution adopted by the Republican Executive Committee, at its meeting Thursday, voters are asked to support his candidacy in view of his ability as a lawyer and high community standing and integrity.

The resolution is as follows: "Whereas, Frank H. Dean, a life-long resident of this county, is a candidate for Common Pleas Judge, at the election, November 2nd, and

Whereas, we know him to be a man of sterling integrity and highest character, loyal to the interests of his clients, courteous to all, a lawyer of ability, with a true judicial temperament. Now, therefore, be it resolved that we do hereby endorse his candidacy and urge the voters of this county to elect him to the high judicial position to which he aspires, and which he will fill without fear or favor."

COMPANIES HELD ON ANTITRUST ACT

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—Four companies and six individuals today stood accused of violating the Clayton anti-trust act. An action to this effect has been filed in the federal court by United States Attorney Buckner. The firms are all in the business of manufacturing office equipment and filing equipment.

The companies are the Rand Kardex Bureau Inc., the Rand Kardex Co., Inc., the Globe-Wernicke Co., and the Fourth and Central Trust Co., of Cincinnati, O. The individuals are named as James H. Rand, Jr., Buffalo, N. Y.; Stanley M. Knap, Tonawanda, N. Y.; Henry C. Yelzer, Henry C. Yelzer, Jr., and E. Z. Blagg, the latter three of Cincinnati.

The government's complaint alleges various stock acquisitions in connection with the development of the defendant companies and also asks for a discontinuance of interlocking directorates. The government also asks that the Rand Kardex Bureau, Inc., dispose of controlling stock interest in the Globe-Wernicke Co., which it is under contract to acquire.

FIND MEN'S BODIES -CONVICT CONFESSES

MARQUETTE, Mich., Oct. 22.—The bodies of Game Warden Arvid Erickson and Emil Skoglund, who disappeared September 29, were dragged out of Marquette harbor today.

Both bodies were taken from the harbor a half hour after Roy Munn, an ex-convict, confessed that he shot and killed the wardens, according to state police.

"I first shot Erickson with a .22-calibre revolver, after he had arrested me for carrying a rifle without a license," said Munn, according to state police.

"Then, when Skoglund came running up, I shot him with my rifle, which was equipped with a silencer."

"I put the bodies in sacks and weighted them down with bricks," Munn continued. "When I loaded them into the wardens' car and drove to Pikerel lake, forty-five miles from the sand plains, I intended to dump them in the lake but I couldn't find a good place there, so I brought them back to Marquette and threw them off the dock."

IDENTITY OF "MISS X" FEATURES TRIAL OF MRS. M'PHERSON

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 22.—As the preliminary hearing of the Almee Semple McPherson conspiracy neared the end of the fourth week today, both defense and prosecution attorneys were concentrating on establishing the identity of the mysterious "Miss X."

But, despite these efforts, the woman companion of Kenneth G. Ormiston, former radio operator at Angelus temple, at a Carmel cottage can be only designated by a letter of the alphabet.

Mrs. Lorraine Wiseman-Sleaff, herself, a co-defendant, alleges that a Miss Rachel Wells, of Philadelphia was "Miss X," although she has never contended that Miss Wells was Ormiston's companion. She charges that Mrs. McPherson offered a sum of money to find a woman to play that role. Miss Wells was the answer.

Attorneys for the evangelist claim that Mrs. Viria Kimball, of Oakland, Mrs. Sleaff's sister, was the "Miss X."

Yesterday, two witnesses testified concerning the identity of the woman who appeared in Salinas, Calif., and made out an affidavit that she was that woman.

One of them, Judge J. A. Bardin, was positive in his assertion that Mrs. Kimball was the woman; the other, Russell Scott, could not identify Mrs. Kimball as the woman who signed the affidavit before himself and Judge Bardin.

Prosecution attorneys allege that Mrs. McPherson is none other than the phantom "Miss X" and that her entire story of being kidnapped is a hoax.

DETROIT, Oct. 22.—Grace Ford, 25-year-old Indianapolis girl and possessor of a $20,000 wardrobe, was arrested here today after $4,700 in cash, alleged to be part of the loot in the hold-up of the Union Trust Company, Indianapolis, on October 15, was found in her room in Indianapolis.

She was found in the Stratford Arms hotel. A companion, Helen Rose, 22, also was arrested.

According to Detective William Brickley, of Indianapolis, who reached Detroit today, the Ford girl is the sweetheart of Jesse Stevens, who has been arrested in Indianapolis in the bank robbery case.

SLUSH FUND QUERY AT SEATTLE, WASH.

SEATTLE, Oct. 22.—Another "slush fund" investigation will get under way here Saturday, when Senator McNary, of Oregon, arrives in Seattle to begin investigating the campaign disbursements of A. Scott Bullitt, candidate for United States senator on the Democratic ticket.

Notified of the pending investigation, Bullitt, who is in Spokane, said he would be present when the probe started.

Bullitt is accused by Senator Jones and other Republicans of spending enormous sums of money on his campaign.

Bullitt, in turn, it is understood, will demand that an investigation be launched into the expenditures of Senator Jones during his campaign.

One of the dead was identified as George Michaels, of Heshbon, Indiana County. Two other men killed were unidentified. A woman believed to be Mrs. Nellie Michaels, wife of one of the victims was brought to Johnstown Memorial hospital in a serious condition, together with her small son.

FASHIONABLE CLUB PATRONS VICTIMS

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—Six bandits, armed with rifles, shotguns and revolvers, early today held up forty-one men and women in the Biarritz night club and escaped with $20,000 in cash and jewelry.

Two men and a woman were beaten by one of the bandits as the other gunmen terrified the patrons of the club by firing shots through windows and into the ceiling.

Two of the bandits brought a machine gun into action when Walter Timpony, brother of the manager of the club, showed light. Timpony was wounded by one of the bullets and a watchman was knocked unconscious with the butt of a revolver when he showed signs of resisting.

After a round of machinegun bullets had splattered against the wall, the crowd became quiet and lined up along one side of the room. There was no further violence and the bandits left with their unusual assortment of weapons as quietly as they had entered.

BELIEVE MAN AND GIRL IN TOLEDO

TOLEDO, Oct. 22.—Detroit and local detectives today are believed to have unearthed clues that Floyd Drennan and a girl companion, alleged to have held up the New Boston, Mich., bank and to have stolen $15,000 are hiding here.

Deputy Sheriff Trux and Bradley, of the Detroit office, came here two days ago after a man and a woman, supposed to know something of Drennan's movements, were arrested. The two are being held incommunicado.

Two witnesses to the hold-up were brought here and partially identified the woman as Drennan's companion.

TREMOR GENERAL CAUSING TERROR BUT LITTLE DAMAGE

Windows Broken; Property Damage Slight In Early Trembling

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 22.—A sharp tremor shook San Francisco at 4:35 o'clock this morning, breaking a number of windows and sending people scurrying into the streets.

The earthquake was of a few seconds duration and the crash of glass came shortly after.

The windows on the ground floor of the Palace Hotel were shattered.

The center of the earthquake has not yet been determined.

Telephone communication to Salinas, seventy-five miles south of here, has been disrupted, according to local telephone headquarters.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 22.—A sharp earthquake was felt in San Francisco at 4:35 o'clock this morning. The tremor was sufficiently strong to waken persons from their sleep and caused some of them to seek safety in the street.

A number of windows were broken. The tremor was of a few seconds duration.

OAKLAND, Calif., Oct. 22.—Awakened by a sharp tremor early today, citizens of Oakland rushed to the streets to escape from the shaking houses.

Motorists reported the tremor as sharp enough to be noticed while traveling at a high rate of speed.

Damage to property was small.

HOLLISTER, Calif., Oct. 22.—Buildings were rocked by a sharp earthquake early today. Cracked windows appeared to be the only damage suffered.

SAN JUAN, Calif., Oct. 22.—A tremor struck this city today, causing people to run to the streets, but no damage of consequence was reported.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 22.—The central coastal region of California, from Petaluma, fifty miles north of here, to San Luis Obispo, 250 miles south, was shaken early today by two sharp earthquakes which appeared to center in the Salinas Valley, seventy-five miles south of here.

No damage other than broken plate-glass windows had been revealed by a hurried telephonic check of towns in the radius off the tremor.

Salinas reported that, while the first shock, which registered at 4:35, was the most severe felt there since the 1906 quake, which devastated San Francisco, no damage had been reported.

The entire town of Salinas was awakened by the severity of the quake, however, and within a few seconds, lights flashed on and throngs gathered in the streets.

The first shock was of merely half a minute duration and the second, which came at 5:35 a. m., was a brief, sharp quake, which lasted but a few seconds.

SALINAS, Cal., Oct. 22.—A severe earthquake, described by some as the strongest since the 1906 earthquake, shook Salinas and the surrounding country early today.

Of at least half a minute duration, the tremor brought persons rushing from their homes. Quickly the town was lighted as lights flashed on in excited houses.

Communication was disrupted out of the city for a few minutes but was quickly restored, no damage having been reported beyond the breaking of windows.

Surrounding communities were likewise abruptly aroused by the quake.

The second shock appeared to be of greater intensity, however, than the peak of the first tremor.

The first shock was not felt forty miles south of Salinas, Ojai, apparently, did not extend farther north than Santa Rosa.

Inland, it was felt for approximately fifty miles. Crockett reported that it was felt there and was of great severity.

San Francisco and East Bay cities felt both quakes with clear sharpness, dishes rattling in cupboards, loose doors swaying, and, in a few instances, plate glass was broken.

San Juan, Hollister, Monterey and other Monterey County towns felt the tremors with varying degrees of intensity, all agreeing that the shock had centered in the Salinas valley.

SAN LUIS OBISPO, Cal., Oct. 22.—An earthquake was felt here early today. It was of slight intensity.

Petaluma, Cal., Oct. 22.—A sharp earth tremor was felt here early today.

Officers of the County Republican Executive Committee consider themselves most fortunate in obtaining the appearance of Mr. Longworth in Xenia for an address. It will be his first appearance in this city.

Fifteen women members of a sewing club enjoyed a delightful affair at the Graham cottage on the Little Miami river north of Old Town, Thursday, which was arranged as a final party for the pleasure of Mrs. H. J. Farrell, a member of the club before the removal of the Farrell family to Dayton.
The big open fireplace in the cottage held a roaring fire and the blazing logs made a cozy spot which to gather against the cool October winds. A chicken dinner was cooked and served. All we can say is we hope for better.

H. K. Kellogg

It was not sleep he needed

BREAKFAST . . . and he was tired, drowsy, lifeless. Why? Eight hours of sleep were surely enough. What ailed him, anyway? What had become of his old-time vigor and zest? Why, he was only a young man. . .

Yes, and he is only one of a countless number of young men who have grown old and tired long before their time—all because of constipation's vicious poisons. Thank goodness, there is sure, safe, permanent relief from this disease.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is what doctors call a bulk food. As it journeys through the body its fiber remains unchanged. Therefore, it sweeps the intestine clean and urges nature to act normally.

Eat at least two tablespoonfuls of Kellogg's ALL-BRAN every day—in chronic cases, with every meal. If eaten regularly, it is guaranteed to bring permanent relief or your grocer refunds the purchase price. Its delightful nutty flavor makes it good as a cereal. Serve with milk or cream alone or with fresh or preserved fruit. Sprinkle over other cereals; cook with hot cereals; use in soups, or in the recipes given on every package.

Only ALL-BRAN brings sure results. Part-bran products are doubtful and sometimes of no use. Why take chances? Doctors recommend ALL-BRAN because they know a 100% bran product brings results. Kellogg's is the original ALL-BRAN. Ask your grocer for a package this very day. Served in leading hotels and restaurants.

OH, MAN, BUT YOU'RE SMART

The average man will admit to himself, secretly at least, that he is smart. Some admit it openly. The educated man finds the farther he goes in the hunt for knowledge, the less he knows. Study brings out the fact that with all our civilization no human government ever has approached in perfection the economy, patriotism, self-sacrifice, devotion, and perpetuity to be found in the government of the honey-bees.

Insects are the original paper, silk and honey makers. We have, perhaps beaten them in the paper business, but our imitation silk is inferior to the genuine, and our synthetic honey worse. We now have the radio with its great educational possibilities and static tortures, but the insects long have been able to signal one another over relatively long distances by some system which we do not understand. One of our problems in illumination is to create a fire which glows, but which does not burn. So far, in our best lights, much of the energy of combustion is wasted in the form of heat. Light-producing insects, such as the fireflies are able to kindle in their bodies a little blaze which is more than ninety nine per cent light and less than one per cent heat.

Long before man learned to warm his habitation with fire, the bees had discovered a muscular exercise whereby in very cold weather they could raise the temperature of their homes as much as thirty-five degrees centigrade. We cool our rooms with electric fans, but before electricity was harnessed, the bumblebees learned to station individuals along their passageways to create cool air currents by constantly fluttering their wings.

Had man paid heed to the insect world long ago, the gardener might have learned points in his art from the ambrosia beetle, which plants beds of succulent fungus in its burrows to furnish nourishment for its young. The soldier might have learned the possibilities of poisonous gases in warfare from the bombardier beetle, which hurls discomfiting charges of an acid gas at its enemies. The surgeon might have found hints on the use of anesthetics from the solitary wasp, which thrusts its drug-laden sting into its spider or insect victim and by that means stupefies and preserves it as food for future baby wasps. Oh, man, with your little white golf balls, your racing auto, your button that makes light, your radio, if you must admit you are smart, admit it only to yourself!

"KINGS TO RACE WITH"

America, land of kings, wonder of the world, should not forget that her Greek, Roman, mediaeval ancestors were invariably under more or less tyrannous forms of bondage to the great house of a lord, military-butcher or priest of the temple.

Yet today in our country the masses or the common people are the crowned victors in all affairs of government worth talking about. In what way the transition from slavery to freedom came about is a long story, will never be told in detail, for the facts have been lost.

Until very recent times the history of the masses was not regarded as of any importance, and few history writers bothered to gather any facts about the life of slaves in Greece, Egypt, Babylon, Rome, or during the mediaeval era.

The final change from slavery to liberty came about only yesterday. Many more details must be added, however, before the last chapter is written.

About all that we can say is, in short, that the formative forces helping our ancestors out of the pit carry us back to the dawn of time.

The struggle from the pit into the sunshine stains with blood almost every page of ancient, mediaeval and modern history.

"The immortal gods," wrote Plutarch, 1,800 years ago, "have decreed that there always must be a governing class, ruling over slaves kept in line by the lash of the overseer."

And Plutarch reports as a virtue this speech of Alexander the Great, who invited to run a race with athletes, replied, "I would if I could find kings to race with."

Foolish Alexander. His empire is dust, and the very slaves he ridiculed, whipped, branded with hot irons, became through their descendants, the true conquerors. Many a Greek who has a shoe-shining parlor in America, could give Alexander a surprise. These descendants of Alexander's former slaves are now kings in their own right.

If Alexander were alive today, he would find many kings to race with, in the United States; although at that the famous military-butcher imagined that the pretty lands around the Mediterranean comprised the total extent of this earth.

"Onward the chariot of the Untarrying moves;
No day divulges him, nor night conceals;
Thou hear'st the echo of unreturning hooves,
And thunder of irrevocable wheels."

The Theatre

By MAURICE HENLE

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—A radical change in Broadway's make-up that will find a reverberating echo throughout the country is now coming to pass. But while it will be, as I say, a radical change, it will not be by any means a sudden one, and it will be here almost before we are aware of its existence.

The change is due entirely to what might be called a realignment in the motion picture field. There was a time not so very long ago, either, when if there was one long-run motion picture showing on Broadway, one "Covered Wagon," "Big Parade," or "Ten Commandments," it was considered somewhat of a feat. Two were unusual. Three extraordinary. And four impossible.

Close students of the cinema realize now that the "big picture" booked to stay in one theatre for a long run is at last here permanently. It is as logical a development as the five-reel feature was from the one, two and even split reel pictures of yesteryear.

There are today on Broadway no fewer than seven long-run pictures. "Beau Geste" is at the Criterion. D. W. Griffith's "The Sorrows of Satan," is at the George M. Cohan. "Kid Boots" with Eddie Cantor is at the Rialto. "The Big Parade" is at the Astor. "Ben Hur" is at the Embassy. Two Vitaphone shows are featured at Warners and the Colony, with feature pictures in addition.

But this in itself, though interesting, is hardly revolutionary.

Within a short time after the opening of the new Paramount Theatre in November the Rivoli Theatre since the day it opened its doors a program picture house with changes weekly, will go over to the new order of things. It will become a long run house and it is expected that James Cruze's "Old Ironsides" will inaugurate the new policy.

But even that is not all, but it is especially mentioned to show the trend the thing is taking. Besides "Old Ironsides," a theatre will have to be found for Erich von Stroheim's new picture, "The Wedding March." One will have to be found for Mauritz Stiller's "Hotel Imper-

USING LEFT-OVER COFFEE

"I have become so frugal that I just can't bear to throw away anything edible," writes a Housekeeper Reader. "So I would be grateful to you if you could tell me how to use left-over cups of coffee in dessert form."

Nothing gives me more pleasure than helping a reader beat the high cost of living by suggesting ways of using her left-overs. I receive so many letters of this nature, and I always say to myself triumphantly, after reading them, "Still more women joining the Sensible Army of Thrifty Housewives!"

Here are two good coffee recipes

Coffee Cabinet Pudding: Butter a mold thickly and sprinkle the bottom and sides with chopped nut meats. Fill the mold loosely with small pieces of stale cake, sprinkling more of chopped nut meats between the layers of cake. When the mold is full, pour over the cake a raw custard made of two eggs and one cup each of strained coffee him with the demand that he settle the argument of whether or not the stock was inflated in price.

He thought a moment and replied: "I haven't gone into that situation deeply enough to warrant giving an opinion. You see, it is a holding company and requires lots of effort to dig out the facts. If you wish, I'll spend a day or two on it and give you an opinion later."

The only man among the five who would not give a quick, definite opinion was the only one who really knew anything about it or who was qualified to give an opinion. Why wouldn't the others think it over? They couldn't. They wouldn't know what factors to consider to determine the value of the stock. At the end of a month of thinking, the only opinion they could give would be the same old expression of a hunch, with nothing to back it up. To be sure they might be right, but they wouldn't know why, and they might also be wrong. That is why it is advisable for the investor to listen to a dependable expert before investing.

HOSPITABLE PEOPLE

"With all their rudeness the pioneer people were given to hospitality, and freely divided their rough fare with a neighbor or a stranger, and would have been offended at the offer of pay. In their settlements and forts they lived, they worked, they fought, they feasted, or suffered together in cordial harmony. They were warm and constant in their friendships.

"On the other hand they were revengeful in their resentments; the point of honor sometimes led to personal combats. If one man called another a liar, he was considered as having given a challenge which the person who received it must accept or be deemed a coward; the charge was generally answered on the spot with a blow.

"If the injured person was decidedly unable to fight the aggressor, he must get a friend to do it for him. The same thing took place on a charge of cowardice, or any other dishonorable action, a battle must follow, and the person who made the charge must fight either the person against whom it was made, or any champion who chose to espouse his cause.

"Thus circumstanced, the people in early times were much more cautious of speaking evil of their neighbors than they are at present."

AS I AM

That wife o' mine will tell you I Am peevish, petulant and proud. You see me with a laughing eye, Making a show to please the crowd. But she will tell you that I scold The mornings when my coffee's cold.

That wife o' mine will tell you I Am careless, critical and cross, With neither taste for hat nor tie, In some things I'm a total loss, And did you gain her confidence She'd tell you I've no common sense.

That wife o' mine will tell you I Will whimper at the slightest pain And act like one about to die Until my health returns again. She'll tell you that when I'm put out, My face takes on a baby pout.

That wife o' mine will tell you I Am foolish, frivolous, forgetful; You see me with a laughing eye, But she has seen me when I'm fretful.

My public pose is but a sham, The wife beholds me as I am.

East Side - West Side

OF New York

By Jack O'Donnell

New Yorkers are a speculative lot. They settle many big problems by the flip of a coin.

Two promoters of big spectacles recently entered into a partnership arrangement. A few days later they got a contract to stage a huge pageant and festival, the profits from which they estimated would be approximately $100,000.

The contract had hardly been signed when one of the partners decided that the other was not the sort of person who could be trusted in such a big venture. Going to his newly acquired partner he said: "One of us has got to get out. I will buy or sell. What do you offer?"

The other thought a moment then said: "We'd probably argue for days without coming to an agreement. Let's flip a coin. The fellow that loses gets out and the other carries on alone. What say?"

A coin was flipped. The discontented member called "Heads." And when the coin came to rest "tails" were showing.

"I just flipped myself out of $50,000," said the loser with a smile. "However, tomorrow is another day."

He doesn't know yet that the coin which was supplied by the man who won—had "tails" on both sides.

One of the things about New York I love is Brooklyn Bridge. That others share this affection is evidenced by the fact that almost all visitors to Gotham ask to be taken there.

I like to go there and watch the unending procession of pedestrians going to and from Brooklyn. They number about 4,000 daily. Besides the walkers 150,000 persons go back and forth in street cars and automobiles.

It was from this bridge, you will recall, that Steve Brodie took his famous plunge. Only one man out of every million that leaps from this bridge lives to tell about it. Steve is the only one out of the last million.

Gothamites, showing out-of-town-ers about New York, like to point to the Claremont Restaurant and say: "A great spot in the old days," meaning the days when Riverside Drive, on which the building stands, was the mecca of the money barons. But few of them know that the Claremont is rich in history, that it stands on city owned property or that George P. Norris wrote "Woodman, Spare That Tree" in its shadows. Nor does the average New Yorker tell his out-of-town friend that the Claremont section was one of Edgar Allen Poe's favorite loafing places.

Broadway—during rush hours—is No Man's Land for taxicabs. That is the Great White Way is prohibited to cruising taxis. Unattended pay wagons must comb Sixth and Eighth Avenues for customers and may turn into the Street of a Million Lights only if they are taking someone there. Because this is so many chauffeurs have resorted to the simple expedient of populating their cars with anyone who would like a few minutes' joy ride. But the pseudo passenger must agree to alight on demand. Usually these rides are short for taxis are always in demand on Broadway.

Today's Talk

CRUSHED HEARTS

Years ago I came across a lovely poem that told of how a flower, crushed under foot by the careless passerby, made no complaint, but only gave back a more beautiful fragrance in return.

I recently read the story of a blind man, who was once a noble Lord with great possessions. But in the midst of misfortune, he became the prey of the evil, the calculating and the unclean. Soon he was stripped of all he had—even to his great castle. But there was one who was faithful and loyal—a beautiful young woman who gave her all that she might minister to his wants. And together they roamed the country, bound and held by an everlasting love.

Not until the human heart has known sorrow and suffering and has gone hungry from sacrifice, can it know the beauty and gentleness of a living love.

The crushed heart is like the flower which gives back its greatest fragrance only after its beauty and selfishness have been challenged through hurts.

Love is the eternal essence of character. It even outlives the man or woman, as the extract of the flower outlives the flower and is able to scent the air for years after the velvet color has become as dust.

Today I sat for hours under a beautiful tree watching the early fall of the browned and reddened leaves. I thought of the buds that had been all too short a time ago, and then I thought of how these softly falling gifts of nature would soon be a part of the soil again—again to rise in richness in another spring and again add life and substance to the towering tree above me.

And so it is with the crushed heart. Its substance remains a gift immortal under the shining stars, ready to give out again and again in richer worth and beauty. Melodiously, let us say, for greater giving.

SKIN TROUBLE COVERS BODY

At last finds treatment which cleared it away in few days

Badger, Minn., March 1:—"A while ago I was troubled with a skin disease, a mild case of itch, which was very distressing. It began on my leg and was most aggravating; the more I scratched it, the more it itched. Finally a number of tiny pimples formed, and I soon spread all over my body. I became so bad that I did not know what to do about it and was going to consult a physician when a friend of mine suggested that I try Resinol Ointment. I bought a jar the next day and was delighted with the relief I obtained after the first application. A few more treatments and the itch was entirely gone. I have also used Resinol Soap and Ointment for blackheads and pimples and it helped wonderfully. I cannot praise Resinol enough for all the good it has done me." (Signed) Celia Stoffel, Star Route.

Modish Mitzi

MITZI SHOPS AGAIN FOR ELEANOR

Jay V. Jav

Such a pathetic letter from Eleanor. She's freezing to death and she has to write the thesis on The Ethics of Mohammedanism. Not that the two have any connection, but being otherwise engaged for the moment will Mitzi buy her some sweaters—preferably a dozen or two?

Zephyr sweaters are warm and still light enough to be worn under a heavy topcoat. Perhaps Eleanor would like the wide-striped one of green and tan with the brushed alpaca trimming. Or the ziggy one with an all-over pattern in a glorious combination of colors.

A sweater dress might be more practical. The block stripes are immense in two meanings and Eleanor, being very slim, is one of the few people who could wear them. In red, perhaps, combined with beige. The other is a two-toned jumper with a wool crepe skirt.

However, let it not be said that Mitzi exceeded her authority. Eleanor wrote for a sweater and a sweater she shall have—two sweaters in fact. As to the sweater frocks, Mitzi thinks she will come back tomorrow and try a few of them on herself.

Twenty-five deaths were caused by tuberculosis in Greene County last year, six less than the number accredited to that malady in 1924. This was among information disclosed at the annual meeting of Christmas seal chairmen under the Ohio Anti-Tuberculosis League which was held Thursday in Columbus.

There are nine active cases of tuberculosis for every death statistics disclose, and while the per capita costs for illness is $22 a year, not more than fifty cents is spent for health education, speakers at the meeting said. Mrs. A. C. Turrell, chairman and Mrs. Emma McCalmont, secretary and treasurer of the Christmas seal sale in Greene County attended the convention.

DEATH PRONOUNCED DUE TO ACCIDENT

A verdict of accidental death was given by Dr. R. L. Haines, Greene County coroner after an investigation Thursday afternoon of the shooting of Clarence M. Fulkerson, well known Spring Valley man at his home in that village early Thursday morning.

Mr. Fulkerson was accidentally killed by the discharge of a shot gun he was placing in an automobile while preparing for a trip to his farm. The load entered just below the heart and took an upward course tearing away the large blood vessels. He died of hemorrhage within a few moments, breathing only once or twice after members of his family reached his side.

Funeral services will be held at the Fulkerson home Saturday at 2 o'clock, and interment will take place in Woodland Cemetery, Xenia.

"Not Possible To Classify"

By Mack Sauer

WHAT'S THE NEWS?

Rufus D. Reaper has had a housekeeper to cook and fix corn on the ears. To can green tomatoes and fry the potatoes. And throw down the hay to the steers; Her name is Amanda and she is a dandy—They've found her quite handy for years.

Now Rufus is eighty, his eyelids are weighty, Both he and his wife have poor sight, So each evening they make her go get the days paper And read until late in the night; She reads of each scandal, the latest of scandal, And how Tunney will fight his next fight.

For years they just let her read what she thought better And never requested she read A particular story of fortune or glory, Of war, of famine, or greed; They just sat in quiet, while she read of riot Or of some new devil in timothy seed.

But now, full of vigor, they both have grown eager For the newsboy to come round their way, They still like the stories of Turk and of Tories, And all that has happened that day, Yet they care not for fire, for death of a Squire, Nor destruction of Tyre, but they say:

"Don't read us the speeches, but all about 'Peaches' And Browning, the man that she sent to the showers; Oh, what has this creature, this rich woman preacher Been doing for twenty-four hours? Have they accused her of kissing? Is Ormiston missing? Have they proved he sent her the flowers.

Each evening they listen, their eyes all aglisten To the latest about the new slush, They hear of each blunder, wonder when in the thunder Old Browning will get a new crush So now their Amanda they find is a dandy, She comes in so handy in reading the mush.

I rise to protest against the instructing of clerks to sell a customer something. In a restaurant the other day I asked for a piece of apple pie.

"We have no apple pie," said the waitress, "but we have some nice beef stew."

Phone an ad to 111 tomorrow.

Joshua—Israel's New Leader
GOLDEN TEXT:—Be strong and of good courage—for Jehovah thy God is with thee whithersoever thou goest. Joshua 1:9.

LESSON TEXT:—Numbers 27:12-23; Joshua 1:1-17.

AFTER MOSES:—God spoke to Joshua for a specific purpose and it was Joshua's great opportunity. Was he ready for it? Yes he was because he had remained close to God and had strong faith, his heart and mind were pure and open for God's guidance. He was born of good parents, which was greatly in his favor, and thus he had good training. He always did his work well. He and Caleb were ready to enter Canaan, after the trip of the spies, because they had perfect confidence in God, in that He would give them victory. That was forty years before this. That God had not forgotten him. God will and can always use all young people who are willing to do His will. Moses was a great teacher, and Joshua was quick and eager to learn, so that all through the pilgrimage, in the wilderness, he kept close to Moses. At last Moses blessed Joshua by placing his hands on him and praying that God bless him and make a true and brave leader. The leaders pass but the work goes on. Forty years of age was not the dead line then but rather they were in their prime. Old men still rule the world. Youth is needed for enthusiasm but old age contains cool judgment, self control, and good cool sense. After personal loss do not give up in despair but rather press on to greater things, with the fellowship and guidance of God.

BE BRAVE AMID DIFFICULTIES:—"Now arise and go over this Jordan." This was God's call to Joshua. Think of the obstacles he confronted, here was Moses dead and that naturally would have a great influence over the people. Would they trust him as they had trusted Moses? He must form an army to conquer the Canaanite giants from this discouraged people, the river was its deepest and swiftest at this time of year, the soldiers must take their armor and arms, if they had any, but they could not swim this swift river now. If the army could swim over that would leave the women and children behind and at this place they were facing the strongest city of the enemy. Even a brave man would think if confronted with these conditions. But Joshua was not discouraged, God was with him. He was firm in his belief that God was calling him and that gave the necessary courage and faith therefore nothing would daunt him. The Lord's promises are not a means to laziness, but are programs of great urgent activity.

MOSES AND JOSHUA ALIKE IN PERFORMING GOD'S TASK: Joshua had no fears and he trusted God fully. Let us study the boundaries of this promised land, on the east was the Euphrates river, the Mediterranean Sea on the west, the Arabian wilderness where they had wandered for forty years on the south, and the Lebanon mountains on the north. This was the land where Abraham, Isaac and Jacob had lived. These plans were given to Joshua and they could be followed as surely as the blueprints of an architect. What often seems an aircastle of a young person is really the plans of God. Be sure they are God's. He will tell you if you are in doubt. God is with you as surely as He was with Moses and Joshua, merely to a different degree.

"Be strong and of good courage." Divine promise, presence and power do not dispense with human courage. True courage is fearless for the right but fears to do wrong. That last picture shows how Joshua will conquer all his enemies. The man has lost his sword and shield and is fleeing before Joshua. This is partly because Joshua is naturally bold, but it is chiefly because God is with him and because God has chosen him to be successful and victorious in all his battles. Look at that picture of the dead Moses again. Do you see the angels? What do they mean? They were there to bury Moses, and they were also ready to give courage and faith to Joshua. They did another thing, too, that you will learn about in the next story. Now Joshua remembered all the wonderful things God did for Moses, and that the spirit of the great leader passed into him. What were difficulties to one who had God with him and for him? He was told that he should divide the land by lot among the different tribes. Joshua's name at first was Jehoshua, meaning "help," but it was changed to Jehoshua, or Joshua, which means "the help" of "salvation to God." We may be sure he will succeed if he remains true to his name.

NOW IS MY CHANCE:—General Grant, in his memoirs, tells how he secured his first promotion. He was sorry to hear, by a private letter, that a neighbor boy at West Point had failed in his examination and was coming home. Grant took time by the forelock, and going to his congressman, got him to promise him the first vacancy, and thus he secured the coveted place. So there is a just ambition that is the secret of true greatness. It is not by getting through the solicitation of friends, titles to our names.—Exchange.

PICTURES AND DREAMS:—Men, from the time they are little boys, see ahead of them some goal. They aspire to be president of the United States, a justice of the Supreme Court, a great surgeon, a great artist or a great business man. They dream of their future and count each month as precious time to be filled with acts that shall help in the carrying out of their ambition. They let nothing stand in the way, and thus we hear of boys who have been rail-splitters and canal boys reaching the highest office within the gift of the people; of some poor little peasant who becomes a great painter.—Exchange.

At last they were driven into their stronghold, Avaris, and beleaguered there. Stubbornly and long they held the strong walls, fighting fiercely in entrenchments upon the besieger's camp, and dashing out in warships on the canals around the city; but in the end all was of no avail. Unwillingly they had to loose their hold upon the land, and sullenly they withdrew beyond the deserts from which they had come in the days long gone by. And so it fell that there arose a new king over Egypt which knew not of Joseph, and many kings after him whose only thought of the men of Israel in Goshen would be that they were friends of the hated outland princes who had been driven forth from the land.

So for generations Israel lived in the shadow, as they had ere-while lived in the sunshine, and were despised and hated where once they had been welcomed. And during these days Egypt became a mighty conquering power, and sent her hosts abroad over Palestine and Syria, even unto the great river Euphrates; and all the nations of the world bowed down before her star, and kissed the ground before her Pharaoh, as before God manifest in the flesh.

Now it befell that after many years there came to the throne of Egypt a Pharaoh whose name was Ramses. Ramses the Great, men call him still; but he was not, save in pride and ambition. He was a fierce soldier, and, above all other things, a mighty builder.

Everywhere, throughout the land, he reared vast temples to the gods, and in the pride of his heart he set before them great statues of himself, hewn out of mighty blocks of granite, such as have never been handled by any other men in all the world, either before or since. For the carrying out of these great works he cast his eyes upon the men of Israel in Goshen. They were taken from their shepherding and husbandry and forced to bend their backs to all the bitter labour of Pharaoh's building. Under the burning sun, and the cruel lash of the slave-driver, they moulded bricks, and dragged great blocks of red granite and white limestone and huge stones up the long slopes of earth till they reached their place upon the wall. Two store cities in especial they built for their tyrant, Pithom, the sacred city of Atum, god of the Setting Sun, and Ramses, the name-city of a mighty monarch.

Yet, though many died in these labours and many were broken, not all the cruelty of Pharaoh could diminish the numbers of the men of Israel. Indeed it seemed that oppression only made them stronger. Then the cruel heart of the King was shaken with fear, because the number of this race of slaves increased continually; and he sent forth a cruel and wicked command, "Every son of the Hebrews that is born," he said, "ye shall cast into the river, and every daughter ye shall save alive." For so he weened that ere long the race of Israel should be cut off altogether out of the land.

GO TO CHURCH SUNDAY

You cannot get away from the fact that this city would be a pretty sorry city in which to live if it had no churches. Neither have you any right to hedge and say "I am only one person—it makes no difference whether I go or not." You must remember that the church is made up of individuals.

Christianity was intended not only to bring people in closer touch with their Creator but to also help in the uplift of the human race. Human service is the underlying principle of the church.

The church yearns to assure men that she wants to be helpful in every possible way. Like her Master, she is in our midst. "Not to be ministered unto, but to minister." Her ministers are willing to kneel at every death bed and stand by every grave, speaking the Gospel of life. Even more eagerly do they desire to serve the people through the years of youth and health, so that the comfort of Christ would be no strange word when in the hour of extreme need. But don't wait until the hour of trial for the blessed ministry of the church.

Go to church Sunday.

Minister of Indiana Harbor

SEEKST THOU GREAT THINGS?

Oh, the greatness of little things!
Just a line on a post-card, but it changed a whole day's drudgery into a dream!
Just a handclasp—no word was spoken—but, in some way, it soothed the wounded soul!
Just a cluster of wild flowers placed in a sick child's faded fingers, but it inspired a prayer of gratitude which winged its way to the throne of God.
Just a word of appreciation lightly spoken where two paths met, but it lit the lamp of hope in a pilgrim's heart.
Just a smile, but it transmuted the dark mists of the moment into a rainbow of brightest beauty.
Just a little act of courtesy, but it caused a stranger to say: "Oh, how good is the heart of the world!"

Seekest thou great things, O my masters? Seek them not! Make them out of the opportunities that dot the pathway of your life.

ATTEMPT EMBARGO

LONDON, Oct. 22.—A new effort to tie up the transportation of foreign coal was being made today by the striking coal miners.
The executive committee of the miners' federation met with the general council of the Trades Union Congress, asking that the railroad and transport unions again consider the possibility of laying an embargo against handling foreign coal.
The strike of the coal miners, which began last week, has caused a serious shortage of coal in many parts of the world, and the miners' union is determined to maintain its strike until its demands are met.By THE RT. REV. JAMES E. FREEMAN, DD., LL. D.
THE UNCHANGING CHRIST
"Jesus Christ, the same yesterday and today and forever." Hebrews, 13:8.

Judged in terms of sheer popularity and universal favor, Jesus Christ stands supreme in human thought today. Living, as we do, in a period of sweeping changes where systems and practices that are time honored are swept away over night, this supreme personality maintains its place and increasingly demands the reverent study and devotion of thoughtful men the world over. However critics or scholars may interpret the meaning of His life and teachings, yes, however confused His accredited exponents may be, still the fact remains that this great Master appeals today as never before to every type and class, and His influence upon human thought and action grows and expands with every recurring period. A modern distinguished writer maintains that the most striking thing about Jesus is His originality. No one questions the uniqueness of His place among the great religious teachers. To our mind the most singular thing about Him is His unflinching persistence down the long centuries of time. At various times men have sought to hinder His progress and to impair His influence.

Voltaire, in a period of speculation and doubt, maintained that the institution of the Christian church would not last out another 50 years of time. In another period of large scientific research, with its attendant disclosures, men feared for the prestige and performance of Christian institutions and wondered whether its sovereign teacher could continue to hold his place of supremacy and power. When scholarship gave itself more completely to the study of the Scriptures, bringing with it much of value and yet shifting old positions that had been regarded as permanent, it for use while disturbed stones were being displaced. It is safe to say that nothing that either science or scholarship has contributed has in any wise impaired the personal influence which Jesus continues to exercise over human thought down to the latest hour. Even the colossal catastrophe of a world war, with all its horrors and attending brutality, could not weaken the hold He has upon the human heart and mind.

There are many today who, lacking a broad vision of human concerns, seem to feel that there is danger that the influence of Jesus is somehow or other being impaired, and the institutions He called into existence threatened with early dissolution. A more careful study of the situation discloses the fact that His grip upon the minds of men is, as a matter of fact, stronger today than it has ever been before. It may be that the world is at times unresponsive to a stern dogmatism or to the excesses of institutionalism. There are evidences on every hand that it is responsive to that kind of expression of faith in a living and compelling Master, where His personality and teachings are adequately and consistently set forth. Lincoln's declaration that he was in search of a church that in its very teaching and practice represented nothing more or less than Jesus Christ and Him crucified, is but another form of expression of the world's yearning today. The over-accident upon the institution's importance and authority must give place to a new accent upon the supreme personality that it essays to represent.

An exceedingly clever woman said recently, when asked to join a religious institution: "I will do so, providing it does not take away from me my Christ." It was a significant observation. A striking thing about Jesus is His modernism. He fits into every age and every condition of life makes Him a modernist in the best sense of the word. He is a modernist, because He meets and answers modern conditions and modern needs. To the disillusioned and disappointed, to the sorrowing and confused, to the tempted and slandering, He comes with a message that is so adaptable that it fits every condition and meets every situation. The religion of the Christian church is the religion of a personality. Its devotion may express itself through many and varied forms, from the simplest to the most ornate, but the churches of every name need to be solemnly reminded today that their compelling power, as well as their security reside in making evident to men and women that their one supreme purpose is to manifest Jesus Christ and Him crucified.

STUDENT GETS FROM ONE TO 20 YEARS FOR MANSLAUGHTER

Trial Comes To Abrupt End With Student Found Guilty

CLEVELAND, Oct. 22.—(Ermil) "Frenchy" Balanescu, young drug clerk, is in County Jail here today under sentence of one to twenty years in Mansfield Reformatory. He was convicted yesterday of having caused the fatal poisoning of his sweetheart, Dorothy Elizabeth Kirk.

Balanescu's trial on a manslaughter charge, which lasted nearly two weeks, came to an abrupt end yesterday afternoon when a jury of six men and six women found him to be guilty after deliberating three hours and a half. Within fifteen minutes sentence had been pronounced upon the youth and he was back in jail to await his trip to the reformatory.

Dorothy Kirk died in a hospital August 22. When "Frenchy" self-styled "poor, misguided kid," met her last spring she was suffering from a stomach disorder. The state charged that the youthful suitor, posing as a doctor, gave to her different medicinal potions while health gradually failed her. After her sudden death, police found in Dorothy's room several pills which Balanescu admitted he had bought at a drug store. The coroner's autopsy showed that the girl had been taking these pills and that they contained a poison which caused her death.

The defense of Balanescu was that he never knowingly gave to her any poison and that he lied to her about being a doctor only "because he loved her and wanted her to think he was somebody."

FESS AND HOOVER ON SPRINGFIELD MEETING PROGRAM

Secretary of Commerce Herbert Hoover in an address at Memorial Hall, Springfield, Thursday night told Ohio voters that the achievements of the Coolidge administration and the necessity for carrying out policies that have made those achievements possible, demonstrate the need of returning a Republican majority to Congress this year.

He reviewed in detail the efforts and successes of reconstruction after the World War by the Harding and Coolidge administrations. He said "the impending election involves whether the national administration shall be crippled in its work; whether we shall have consistent continuous resolute economic and governmental policies; whether policies by which we have come thus far are to be halted, and whether we are to substitute two years of confusion and hesitation in the completion of a great national task."

Control of either branch of the congress by the Democrats means as a result of the election, means a deadlock, he said in the progress of governmental policies. The necessity for one of the political parties to be entrusted with responsibility for national policies has come to be a "fundamental to successful conduct of a democracy" he said.

Secretary Hoover discussed the protective tariff, employment and wages, crediting high wages and general employment to effects of the protective tariff.

The address of Secretary Hoover was preceded by a short talk by Senator S. D. Fess.

"EARTH'S GREATEST CONFLICT NEAR"

—It's Necessity And Outcome—Deliverance For The People!

That we are in a great tribulation period is acknowledged by all thinking men. Our day is marked on the one hand, by great social upheavals, labor unrest, distress of nations, crime waves, profiteering and economic chaos. Just following a war to end war, Europe is again an armed camp. Every day the problems of government grow more complex, with manifest inability of our wisest men to cope with these problems.

On the other hand, we live in a day of great achievement and progress, a day of learning and discovery. Our lives are crowded with blessings unknown to our grandfathers. The future portends much more. Every day brings a new surprise. Jesus said that such conditions would mark His second presence, the object of which is to end the old social order and to establish a new upon the ruins. Thus the "Old World" ends. The "New World" begins. The impending conflict will reveal to the people that this new social order is God's Kingdom for which Christians have long prayed.

Its establishment means world-wide peace, joy and happiness; it means an opportunity of ETERNAL LIFE for the living and a return of the dead from the grave; it means LIFE, perfect, limitless, with a regenerated race on a restored earth; with a corrected climate and life-perpetuating food; with a GOVERNMENT that will satisfy the desires of every creature. It is here, right at the door. The portals of a new age are swinging open and many will enter and never die.

Proof of the above will be presented from a scriptural standpoint, in an unsectarian, undenominational MASS MEETING, addressed by Dr. W. H. Spring, OF BROOKLYN, N. Y., XENIA OPERA HOUSE, SUNDAY OCTOBER 24TH, 3:00 P. M.

Plan to attend this lecture. It has been arranged by The International Bible Students Association, and will be free. It will not be repeated. Let no one interfere to prevent your gaining an understanding of your Bible. The message of this lecture has comforted the hearts of multitudes seeking to understand God's purposes as expressed in His Word.

Dr. W. H. Spring
Student, lecturer, orator, Dr. Spring thrills his audiences with his clear Bible logic, his pleasing personality, and his knowledge of human affairs, as evidenced by constantly increasing attendance at repeat engagements.

WHAT'S FLATTERY?

How is the ORDINARY man or woman to actually KNOW when they're being flattered! HOW can they discriminate between this flattery and KIND WORDS? Does one have to be POOR, without influence, homely or without standing in order to be SURE that words of praise are REAL and without the sinister seasoning of flattery?

Where does friendliness and flattery begin? HOW should the recipient of honeyed words, friendly, gracious statements RECEIVE them? Should they blush, stammer, shuffle their feet, say: "Oh, Pshaw!" and try to look modest or should they swell slightly, bow gracefully and allow the crown of commendation to rest lightly on the happy bean?

These are questions which I have had to ask myself several times—a NUMBER of times, in fact—just here lately. The cause being the way we conduct this store!

It's a fat that we HOPE what we HEAR is NOT Flattery! ## CHAPTER 33

LUELLA DISCONCERTED

Luella Loder, in a smart traveling suit of ponce silk, and looking very pretty and determined, stood in the lobby of the hotel, her luggage all about her, and faced her angry aunt with equanimity.

"Even if he did send me my ticket, why shouldn't I come down here, if I'd a mind to? After the grind of the studios back in New York, I tell you the prospect of a little holiday was a fascinating. Why shouldn't I be here?"

"Her aunt spluttered: 'It's disgraceful!'

"What's disgraceful? That I have to earn my own living? Well, maybe. But until I find a husband that'll have to continue, won't it? Unless you and uncle want me—"

"Want you?" gurgled her angry relative. "I tell you I'm disgusted with you. Chasing the man down here—and he a criminal, to boot! To boot, I think you mean," corrected Miss Luella, with mad-dening composure. "Well, I don't call it a crime, and neither in your heart do you. He's got off with a fine, so why worry? And really I don't care to hear too much criticism of my future husband."

"Your—husband?" Mrs. Wade's angry eyes widened. "So you're going to marry Rogers, are you? Even with that black mark against him?"

"Black mark nothing!" retorted Miss Luella. "The man has pots of money, and I'm quite fond enough of him to become his wife. I'm sick of slaving."

"Huh?" Mrs. Wade tossed her head. "I've never seen you slaving. But you make the men work right enough."

"That's what I intend to do in the future," came back the composed answer. "Now don't let's have a scene. I'm here for several days and if my future husband wants to foot the bills, why not?"

She sailed majestically into the bedroom that she had reserved by cable, and proceeded to unpack. She then sent for Mary Forrest.

"Aunt's as mad as a wet hen, because John Rogers sent me my ticket. But don't pay any attention to her. Just hand up these frocks, my dear. And stick those silk things in the bureau—that's right."

Luella then made inquiries about Philip Andover.

"I hear he's been quite attentive," she shot a sharp glance at her uncle's secretary. "You're foolish, when you could really do much better. The man's a pauper, and he hasn't even got his health."

Mary bent her head over one of Luella's trunks, to hide the quick flush that had risen.

"I heard he was after the Stuyvesant heiress up in Pinehurst. She's a pert child, and I dislike her. I'm glad to hear you cut her out, though I'll bet she drags her people on to Cuba, after him."

Luella then spoke of her own part in the picture that was to be "shot" down there.

"Rogers is backing it. I'm lucky."

That day the Wade party was bidden to a turtle picnic, given by a wealthy resident of the town. Luella slipped into a charming frock of palest blue. Down on her smartly shingled golden locks she drew a droopy picture hat.

When John Rogers, no longer daunted by his recent exposure, called to escort her to this feast, his eyes dilated. She was beautiful—and chic.

He told her so. He sat beside her in an adoring attitude, aboard the Nassau launch that took the seventy guests to the island where the picnic was to be held.

While numerous servants were carrying ashore provisions for the party, the guests bathed in the clear blue water. Luella's diamond suit caused quite a thrill, so ultra-modish was it in its cut, so perfect was her figure.

Afterwards a flaming fire was lit upon the sands, and the turtle was set on to stew.

A bar (which did much business) was established in the shadow of a palm.

After the savory turtle had been apportioned into bits, and eaten with sauces and with sherry, the guests ate cheese and quava jelly. Then came coffee.

The party wandered in pairs and groups about the island. Philip Andover contrived to slip away with Mary.

They had started out on the launch a little late, so already it was after three o'clock.

"We don't go back until the moon has risen," he informed her, glad—so glad to have her to himself.

They all met later at an alfresco dinner on the sands. Native singers sang romantic ditties for the edification of the picnicers.

John Rogers was with Miss Luella Loder. Things had "marched" with some rapidity that day, and Luella was in high fettle.

The moon, shining down on a sea of silvery blue, flung magic over everything. Luella's dreams, however, were intensely practical. She had investigated Roger's fortune and was quite determined that she should be controller of it. Apart from his bootlegging activities—and these had been confined to the Bahamas as a starting-point, but sprang from other points as well—he had made lots of money on his cattle-station back in the Australian blocks.

Not that Luella ever would live there. Oh, no! She would grace the playgrounds of the world—and that meant Europe. She would patronize her aunt, and accept no further slights from that outspoken lady. Ah! wealthy she would be. And wealth meant power.

The return offered further opportunities for Rogers' ardor: "We're engaged, aren't we?" whispered Luella, the practical, when, in a dark corner of the launch, he slipped his arm about her.

kind to her. Only the publicity won't do you any good."

Luella burst into nervous, angry tears.

"I think you're hateful, coming in here and bailing me."

But Mrs. Wade was not to be touched so easily. She was irritated with her money-grabbing and self-seeking niece.

"I think the best thing we can do is clear out of the place," she gloomily announced. "Mrs. Rogers is ill. But when she's well enough to talk to anybody, I'm afraid you'll only put your foot in it worse than you've already done. So we'd better all go on to Cuba, right away."

The idea suited Miss Luella. Before they left, however, she contrived to have an interview with Rogers.

She had planned to act like an outraged goddess, but at sight of the man's broken look even her hard heart melted a little, if such a strange phenomenon were possible.

"You've behaved abominably—"

"Don't say more, Luella!" Tears stood in his eyes. "I didn't mean to deceive you. There were lots of times when it was on the tip of my tongue to tell you—"

She interrupted with a sarcastic: "And what about that evening at the El Fey Club, when your wife and Mrs. Andover appeared? I asked you then if you were married, and you flatly denied anything of the kind. You made a fool of me—"

"I loved you, Luella. I love

"Indeed? So much that you would have ruined my reputation by taking me on that precious honeymoon you spoke of—Spain—the East—ha! ha!"

He said gently: "But I meant to go to Paris first, and get a divorce. I swear I did. You must believe me."

"And what about that poor creature in there?" She inclined her head in the direction of the hotel, where the sick woman lay. A dull flush rose to his cheeks.

"I've been a cad, but I've never kept her short of money. She's the home-body type, and I couldn't cope with that. We were ordinary folks, Luella, and we never hit it off. She'd no ambitions. Couldn't rise with me. She hated change and travel. I—I sort of grew away from her."

Luella could well believe it.

He went on: "I never treated her badly, in the money sense. She was welcome to all I had, except—except my company. I—I got so sick and tired of my marriage, Luella,

I haven't lived with her in years and years."

His listener began to feel a little mollified.

"If you'll only let me keep your friendship?" He was humble, pleading, almost abject. "I'd be so proud—and honored. And if I can help in a financial way, oh, you can count on me, Luella!"

There were actually tears in his eyes as he made this offer. She was touched. The thought of money always touched her, if the truth be told.

EARTHQUAKE FELT OVER CALIFORNIA

600 DEAD IN CUBA; THOUSANDS HOMELESS

7,000 INJURED IN
WESTERN SECTION
REPORTS INDICATE

One Hundred Vessels Lost
In Storm, Crews
Drowned

HAVANA, Oct. 22.—Six hundred dead, possibly a thousand injured and seven thousand or more homeless as a result of the hurricane which swept Havana and Western Cuba on Wednesday was indicated today as reports began to trickle into the capital from the stricken provincial towns isolated since the storm.

These figures were based upon reports brought from inland towns and villages by six couriers, who traveled 150 miles on foot to bring their messages. Property damage, in the light of these reports, was estimated at $75,000,000.

A further check-up of shipping revealed that approximately 100 vessels, large and small, foundered in the storm and many of the members of the crews still are missing. It is believed that between fifty and 100 of them have been drowned.

The reports of the messengers indicated that the towns of the interior had been hit harder by the storm than Havana itself. The stricken populations appealed for immediate relief. Despite its own crippled condition, Havana organized relief expeditions and rushed them to the more stricken areas. Terrible havoc in the outlying districts was indicated. Literally thousands of homes were wiped out and hundreds of families are on the verge of starvation. A condition of grave distress was reported in every section of the storm area by the couriers.

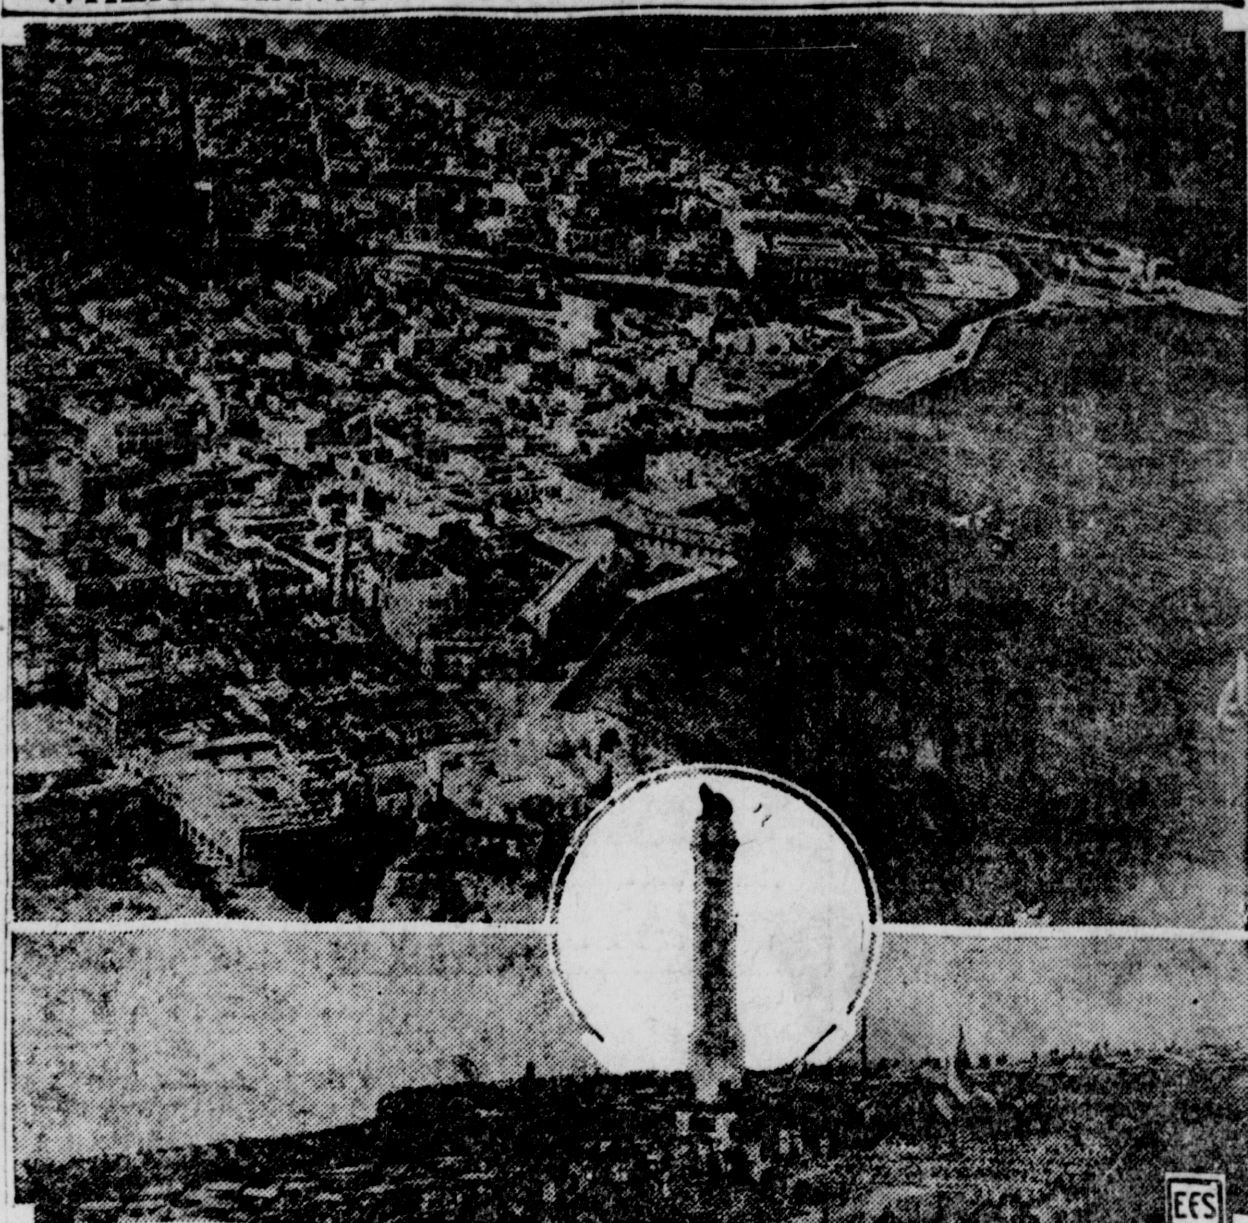

The sugar crop appears to have been particularly hard hit. Dispatches from Pinar del Rio, coming by courier, indicated the entire crop in that section was destroyed. Some sugar factories also were reported destroyed or badly damaged.

An immediate increase in the price of sugar is predicted as a result of the storm.

Refugees by the hundred were arriving in Havana today from the nearer storm-swept districts. All were practically destitute and many were in a serious condition, due to hunger and exposure. Each family had its own story to tell of the horror of the storm.

The fate that overtook many of the seamen on boats which were sunk became apparent today with the appearance in the harbor of bodies badly mutilated by sharks and other huge fish. The authorities said this circumstance would make it difficult to ascertain with any degree of certainty how many lost their lives in the disaster.

WHERE HAVANA HURRICANE DID WORST DAMAGE

Photos show strip of Havana waterfront where hurricane did worst damage, and (below), Maine memorial monument, blown over in the storm. Reports have 50 dead, 500 injured, $50,000,000 property damage in Cuba as result of latest of the series of tropical disturbances.

Chicago Gang Warfare Ends In Treaty Signed By Four Leaders In Hotel Room

CHICAGO, Oct. 22.—Chicago's gang warfare has ended. An official treaty of peace was signed by the four principal leaders of gangland in a room at a downtown hotel shortly after midnight this morning. The pact was signed following a conference that lasted most of the night.

The gangsters were brought together it was reported, through the efforts of high city and county officials worried over the forthcoming election.

"Scar-face Al" Capone, leader of the powerful Cicero faction, whose diplomacy is credited for the success of the peace negotiations, was a proud spokesman for the amalgamated forces of gangland today. "Yes, we have signed a treaty of peace," Capone admitted. "Tonight for the first time in two years, I will sleep without a gun under my pillow."

"I believe it will be a lasting peace. I know I won't break it and I don't believe the North side boys will, either. What a relief! I feel like a kid. When the meeting was over, I called my wife and she cried so hard she couldn't talk to me."

The "big four" of gangland who negotiated the truce are, besides Capone, Maxie Eisen, George "Bugs" Moran and Vincent "Schemer" Drucchi. The latter was a partner of the late Earl Weiss, slain in a machine-gun ambushade ten days ago. It was this shooting that brought about the peace conference.

The companies are the Rand Kardex Bureau Inc., the Rand Kardex Co., Inc., the Globe-Wernecke Co. and the Fourth and Central Trust Co., of Cincinnati. O. The individuals are named as James H. Rand, Jr., Buffalo, N. Y.; Stanley M. Knapp, Tonawanda, N. Y.; Henry C. Yeiser, Henry C. Yeiser Jr., and E. Z. Blagg, the latter three of Cincinnati.

The government's complaint alleges various stock acquisitions in connection with the development of the defendant companies and also asks for a discontinuance of interlocking directorates. The government also asks that the Rand Kardex Bureau, Inc., dispose of controlling stock interest in the Globe-Wernecke Co., which it is under contract to acquire.

"We have heard considerable discussion," said Judge Gary, "relating to anticipated competition between iron and steel manufacturers of the United States and foreign competitors but it is believed that, should it become necessary, an international conference will be held between all these interests and a full, open discussion indulged in, after which a fair understanding could be reached."

"Of course, no agreement between the different interests relating to prices could legally be entered into without sanction of our law administrators, but, if necessity arose, it is thought the approval of the public authority of the country might be obtained."

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—In an address before the American Iron and Steel Institute today, Judge Elbert H. Gary, chairman of the United States Steel Corporation, suggested the possibility of a concordant between the steelmakers of the United States and Europe.

"We have heard considerable discussion," said Judge Gary, "relating to anticipated competition between iron and steel manufacturers of the United States and foreign competitors but it is believed that, should it become necessary, an international conference will be held between all these interests and a full, open discussion indulged in, after which a fair understanding could be reached."

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Oct. 22.—In the role of a "political mountain" going to meet Mahomet, Senator James A. Reed, Democrat, of Missouri, brought his "one man" slush fund inquiry into Indiana today to wind up his investigation of the Hoosier senatorial campaign.

The inquiry was resumed here after a four-day session in Chicago, primarily for the purpose of giving Senator James E. Watson, Republican, of Indiana, an opportunity to defend himself against charges that the Ku Klux Klan was "going down the line" for him in the present campaign and that he was the Klan's potential candidate for the presidency in 1928.

Watson, bedfast at the Methodist hospital here as the result of an automobile accident, could not go to Chicago, so Reed brought his "committee" to the Indiana senator's bedside.

It was Reed's plan to hear Watson's statement in the latter's bedroom at the Methodist hospital. There was every likelihood, meanwhile, that the Hoosier inquiry would be closed here late this afternoon, after Reed has heard Watson, Senator Arthur S. Robinson, also a candidate for re-election, and a number of former Klan officials. The latter were expected to discuss the revelations concerning the Klan's activity in politics.

PARIS, Oct. 22.—Members of Prince Carol's household at Neully today denied reports from Belgrade that the prince now is visiting there with his sister, Queen Marie of Serbia. Prince Carol is still at Neully, they said.

F. H. DEAN ENDORSED BY REPUBLICAN COMMITTEE FOR COMMON PLEAS JUDGE

The strenuous campaign being waged by Attorney Frank H. Dean, Republican candidate for Common Pleas Court Judge on the non-partisan judicial ticket at the November 2 election, received additional impetus when his candidacy was given the unanimous endorsement of the Greene County Republican Executive Committee, at a meeting Thursday afternoon.

Mr. Dean is a practicing lawyer in Xenia for many years and has been a life long resident of Greene County, and is well fitted for the position he seeks.

In a resolution adopted by the Republican Executive Committee, at its meeting Thursday, voters are asked to support his candidacy in view of his ability as a lawyer and high community standing and integrity.

The resolution is as follows: "Whereas, Frank H. Dean, a life-long resident of this county, is a candidate for Common Pleas Judge, at the election, November 2nd, and

Whereas, we know him to be a man of sterling integrity and highest character, loyal to the interests of his clients, courteous to all, a lawyer of ability, with a true judicial temperament.

Now, therefore, be it resolved that we do hereby endorse his candidacy and urge the voters of this county to elect him to the high judicial position to which he aspires, and which he will fill without fear or favor."

EXPATRIATED COUNTRYMEN KISS HAND OF QUEEN VISITING COLONY

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 22.—Cheered by a visit among her own people, a colony of expatriated Roumanians dwelling in Philadelphia's slums, Queen Marie, of Roumania, and her entourage left here this morning for New York City, where a round of social activities awaits her. The party left for New York shortly after seven o'clock.

Brushing aside the plans of Mayor Kendrick for her attendance at elaborate social functions, the famous beauty insisted on visiting a shabby little Roumanian church near the docks of the Delaware. There expatriated Roumanians, who might have been expected to accord their former ruler a totally reception, kissed her hand and cried.

The queen had promised to visit the church and she did, despite the protests of the members of the reception committee.

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—A visit to Columbia University, a reception at the Young Women's Christian Association and a banquet given by the Iron and Steel Board of Trade at the Hotel Commodore were the high lights of the program mapped out for Queen Marie of Roumania today.

Following her return from Philadelphia this morning, the queen, accompanied by the Princess Ileana and Prince Nicholas, was to attend a luncheon at the Bankers Club given by Major Radu Rimcescu, director of one of Roumania's leading financial institutions.

Queen Marie's first visit to an American college campus is set for 3:30 o'clock this afternoon. She will be escorted about the Columbia campus by President Nicholas Murray Butler.

When she leaves Columbia, Queen Marie and Princess Ileana will attend a reception held in their honor at the National Board of Young Women's Christian Association.

The dinner at the Commodore follows. After that she attends a supper given in her honor by Elbert H. Gary, at 865 Fifth Avenue.

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—Four companies and six individuals today stood accused of violating the Clayton anti-trust act. An action to this effect has been filed in the federal court by United States Attorney Buckner. The firms are all in the business of manufacturing office equipment and filing equipment.

THE COMPANIES ARE THE RAND KARDUX BUREAU INC., THE RAND KARDUX CO., INC., THE GLOBE-WERNECKE CO. AND THE FOURTH AND CENTRAL TRUST CO., OF CINCINNATI, O.

IDENTITY OF "MISS X" FEATURES TRIAL OF MRS. M'PHERSON

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 22.—As the preliminary hearing of the Almee Semple McPherson conspiracy neared the end of the fourth week today, both defense and prosecution attorneys were concentrating on establishing the identity of the mysterious "Miss X."

But, despite these efforts, the woman companion of Kenneth G. Ormiston, former radio operator at Angelus temple, at a Carmel cottage can be only designated by a letter of the alphabet.

Mrs. Lorraine Wiseman-Sieff, herself, a co-defendant, alleges that a Miss Rachel Wells, of Philadelphia was "Miss X," although she has never contended that Miss Wells was Ormiston's companion. She charges that Mrs. McPherson offered a sum of money to find a woman to play that role. Miss Wells was the answer.

Attorneys for the evangelist claim that Mrs. Vira Kimball, of Oakland, Calif., the sister of Mrs. Sieff, was the "Miss X."

Yesterday, two witnesses testified concerning the identity of the woman who appeared in Salinas, Calif., and made out an affidavit that she was that woman.

One of them, Judge J. A. Bardin, was positive in his assertion that Mrs. Kimball was the woman, the other, Russell Scott, could not identify Mrs. Kimball as the woman who signed the affidavit before himself and Judge Bardin.

Prosecution attorneys allege that Mrs. McPherson is none other than the phantom "Miss X" and that her entire story of being kidnapped is a hoax.

DETROIT, Oct. 22.—Grace Ford, 25-year-old Indianapolis girl and possessor of a $20,000 wardrobe, was arrested here today after $4,700 in cash, alleged to be part of the loot in the hold-up of the Union Trust Company, Indianapolis, on October 15, was found in her room in Indianapolis.

She was found in the Stratford Arms hotel. A companion, Helen Rose, 22, also was arrested.

According to Detective William Brickley, of Indianapolis, who reached Detroit today, the Ford girl is the sweetheart of Jesse Stevens, who has been arrested in Indianapolis in the bank robbery case.

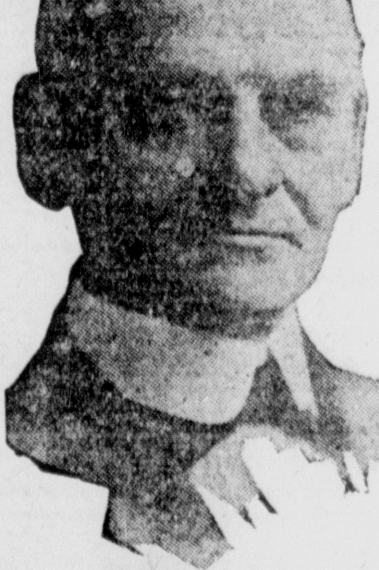

SEATTLE, Oct. 22.—Another "slush fund" investigation will get under way here Saturday, when Senator McNary, of Oregon, arrives in Seattle to begin investigating the campaign disbursements of A. Scott Bullitt, candidate for United States senator on the Democratic ticket.

Notified of the pending investigation, Bullitt, who is in Spokane, said he would be present when the probe started.

Bullitt is accused by Senator Jones and other Republicans of spending enormous sums of money on his campaign.

Bullitt, in turn, it is understood, will demand that an investigation be launched into the expenditures of Senator Jones during his campaign.

TREMOR GENERAL CAUSING TERROR BUT LITTLE DAMAGE

WINDOWS BROKEN; PROPERTY DAMAGE SLIGHT IN EARLY TREMBLING

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 22.—A sharp tremor shook San Francisco at 4:35 o'clock this morning, breaking a number of windows and sending people scurrying into the streets.

The earthquake was of a few seconds duration and the crash of glass came shortly after.

The windows on the ground floor of the Palace Hotel were shattered.

The center of the earthquake has not yet been determined.

Telephone communication to Salinas, seventy-five miles south of here, has been disrupted, according to local telephone headquarters.

A sharp earthquake was felt in San Francisco at 4:35 o'clock this morning. The tremor was sufficiently strong to waken persons from their sleep and caused some of them to seek safety in the street.

A number of windows were broken. The tremor was of a few seconds duration.

OAKLAND, Calif., Oct. 22.—Awakened by a sharp tremor early today, citizens of Oakland rushed to the streets to escape from the shaking houses.

Motorists reported the tremor as sharp enough to be noticed while traveling at a high rate of speed.

Damage to property was small.

HOLLISTER, Calif., Oct. 22.—Buildings were rocked by a sharp earthquake early today. Cracked windows appeared to be the only damage suffered.

SAN JUAN, Calif., Oct. 22.—A tremor struck this city today, causing people to run to the streets, but no damage of consequence was reported.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 22.—The central coastal region of California, from Petaluma, fifty miles north of here, to San Luis Obispo, 250 miles south, was shaken early today by two sharp earthquakes which appeared to center in the Salinas Valley, seventy-five miles south of here.

No damage other than broken plate-glass windows had been revealed by a hurried telephonic check of towns in the radius off the tremor.

Salinas reported that, while the first shock, which registered at 4:35, was the most severe felt there since the 1906 quake, which devastated San Francisco, no damage had been reported.

The entire town of Salinas was awakened by the severity of the quake, however, and within a few seconds, lights flashed on and throngs gathered in the streets.

The first shock was of merely half a minute duration and the second, which came at 5:35 a. m., was a brief, sharp quake, which lasted but a few seconds.

SALINAS, Cal., Oct. 22.—A severe earthquake, described by some as the strongest since the 1906 earthquake, shook Salinas and the surrounding country early today.

Of at least half a minute duration, the tremor brought persons rushing from their homes. Quickly the town was lighted as lights flashed on in excited houses.

Communication was disrupted out of the city for a few minutes but was quickly restored, no damage having been reported beyond the breaking of windows.

Surrounding communities were likewise abruptly aroused by the quake.

The second shock appeared to be of greater intensity, however, than the peak of the first tremor.

The first shock was not felt forty miles south of San Luis Obispo and, apparently, did not extend farther north than Santa Rosa.

Inland, it was felt for approximately fifty miles. Crockett reported that it was felt there and was of great severity.

San Francisco and East Bay cities felt both quakes with clear sharpness, dishes rattling in cupboards, loose doors swaying and, in a few instances, plate glass was broken.

San Juan, Hollister, Monterey and other Monterey County towns felt the tremors with varying degrees of intensity, all agreeing that the shock had centered in the Salinas valley.

SAN LUIS OBISPO, Cal., Oct. 22.—An earthquake was felt here early today. It was of slight intensity.

PETALUMA, Cal., Oct. 22.—A sharp early tremor was felt here early today.

SEVEN AMERICANS PLUNGED IN CHANNEL WHEN PLANE FALLS

FOLKSTONE, Oct. 22.—The chief worry of the seven Americans who had a thrilling half hour in the icy waters of the English channel yesterday when an Imperial Airways aeroplane, bound for Paris, was forced down in the channel, was their luggage.

The trunks and bags of the air-traveling American were all left on board the aeroplane, which is submerged in the channel. An effort is being made to salvage the aeroplane.

None of the Americans have suffered any ill effects from their adventure.

Undaunted by their experience yesterday, Mrs. O. J. S. Bonney and her daughter, Miss Peggy Bonney, of Columbus, O., intended to continue their journey to Paris today by aeroplane. They were unable to take the morning plane, however, as they were busy buying new clothes, having to borrow costumes to wear while they shopped.

TIME DECISION TO BE LEARNED SOON

CINCINNATI, O., Oct. 22.—The interstate commerce commission is expected to hand down a decision within thirty to sixty days on the question of providing a large portion of Western Ohio with Eastern time, it was learned here today.

J. T. Money, attorney-examiner for the commission, who recently conducted a hearing here on the matter, today was expected to forward to the commission his report of the data gathered during the meeting.

Following the decision of the commission, representatives of the cities affected by the time ruling will be given a proper allowance of time to make any objections or recommendations on that body's action, it was said.

Mrs. Lorraine Wiseman-Sieff, "Mrs. X" was photographed on the witness stand in a Los Angeles court where she testified against Almee Semple McPherson, accused of conspiracy in her disappearance.

LONGWORTH TO APPEAR WITH OTHER SPEAKERS AT REPUBLICAN RALLY SOON

Nicholas D. Longworth, speaker of the House of Representatives, Congressman Charles Brand and Miss Hattie Q. Brown, of the state campaign committee, will be the principal speakers at an open Republican rally at the Opera House, Saturday night, October 23 at 8 o'clock.

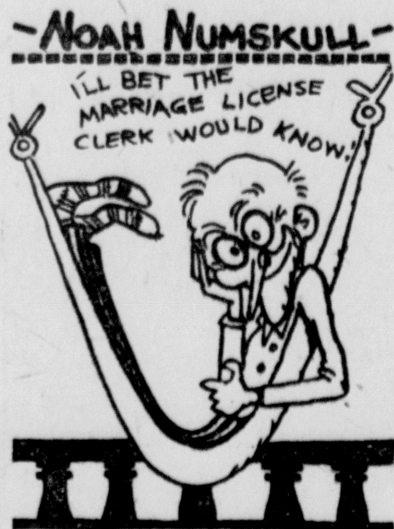

Officers of the County Republican Executive Committee consider themselves most fortunate in obtaining the appearance of Mr. Longworth in Xenia for an address. It will be his first appearance in this city.

The speaker of the house is nationally prominent and probably one of the closest to President Coolidge in the matter of power and influence. He has represented the First Congressional District of Ohio in congress for twenty-four years and is the oldest congressman in point of service in the House.

Mr. Longworth's speaking program in Ohio calls for seven addresses this week. He comes to this state in the interest of the state and senatorial Republican ticket.

County Auditor R. O. Wead, chairman of the County Republican Executive Committee, will be chairman of the meeting which is open free to the public.

The Xenia Municipal Band will furnish music for the meeting.

Ever notice when you go into one of our shoe stores in Xenia they immedi- ately take one of your shoes off? Af- ter that they can wait on somebody else and you can't get away! We wish we could work some plan like that in the elevator business.

It was not sleep he needed

BREAKFAST . . . and he was tired, drowsy, lifeless. Why? Eight hours of sleep were surely enough. What ailed him, anyway? What had become of his old-time vigor and zest? Why, he was only a young man. . .

Yes, and he is only one of a countless number of young men who have grown old and tired long before their time—all because of constipation's vicious poisons. Thank goodness, there is sure, safe, permanent relief from this disease.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is what doctors call a bulk food. As it journeys through the body its fiber remains unchanged. Therefore, it sweeps the intestine clean and urges nature to act normally.

Eat at least two tablespoofuls of Kellogg's ALL-BRAN every day—in chronic cases, with every meal. If eaten regularly, it is guaranteed to bring perma- nent relief or your grocer refunds the pur- chase price. Its delightful nutty flavor makes it good as a cereal. Serve with milk or cream alone or with fresh or preserved fruit. Sprinkle over other cereals; cook with hot cereals; use in soups, or in the recipes given on every package.

Only ALL-BRAN brings sure results. Part-bran products are doubtful and some- times of no use. Why take chances? Doc- tors recommend ALL-BRAN because they know a 100% bran product brings results.

Kellogg's is the original ALL-BRAN. Ask your grocer for a package this very day. Served in leading hotels and restaurants.

OH, MAN, BUT YOU'RE SMART

The average man will admit to himself, secretly at least, that he is smart. Some admit it openly. The educated man finds the farther he goes in the hunt for knowledge, the less he knows. Study brings out the fact that with all our civilization no human government ever has approached in perfection the economy, patriotism, self-sacrifice, devotion, and perpetuity to be found in the government of the honey-bees.

Insects are the original paper, silk and honey makers. We have, perhaps beaten them in the paper business, but our imitation silk is inferior to the genuine, and our synthetic honey worse. We now have the radio with its great educational possibilities and static tortures, but the insects long have been able to signal one another over relatively long distances by some system which we do not understand. One of our problems in illumination is to create a fire which glows, but which does not burn. So far, in our best lights, much of the energy of combustion is wasted in the form of heat. Light-producing insects, such as the fireflies are able to kindle in their bodies a little blaze which is more than ninety nine per cent light and less than one per cent heat.

Long before man learned to warm his habitation with fire, the bees had discovered a muscular exercise whereby in very cold weather they could raise the temperature of their homes as much as thirty-five degrees centigrade. We cool our rooms with electric fans, but before electricity was harnessed, the bumblebees learned to station individuals along their passageways to create cool air currents by constantly fluttering their wings.

Had man paid heed to the insect world long ago, the gardener might have learned points in his art from the ambrosia beetle, which plants beds of succulent fungus in its burrows to furnish nourishment for its young. The soldier might have learned the possibilities of poisonous gases in warfare from the bombardier beetle, which hurls discomfiting charges of an acrid gas at its enemies. The surgeon might have found hints on the use of anesthetics from the solitary wasp, which thrusts its drug-laden sting into its victim or insect victim and by that means stupefies and preserves it as food for future baby wasps. Oh, man, with your little white golf balls, your racing auto, your button that makes light, your radio, if you must admit you are smart, admit it only to yourself!

"KINGS TO RACE WITH"

America, land of kings, wonder of the world, should not forget that her Greek, Roman, mediaeval ancestors were invariably under more or less tyrannous forms of bondage to the great house of a lord, military-butcher or priest of the temple.

Yet today in our country the masses or the common people are the crowned victors in all affairs of government worth talking about. In what way the transition from slavery to freedom came about is a long story, will never be told in detail; for the facts have been lost.

Until very recent times the history of the masses was not regarded as of any importance, and few history writers bothered to gather any facts about the life of slaves in Greece, Egypt, Babylon, Rome, or during the mediaeval era.

The final change from slavery to liberty came about only yesterday. Many more details must be added, however, before the last chapter is written.

About all that we can say is, in short, that the formative forces helping our ancestors out of the pit carry us back to the dawn of time.

The struggle from the pit into the sunshine stains with blood almost every page of ancient, mediaeval and modern history.

"The immortal gods," wrote Plutarch, 1,800 years ago, "have decreed that there always must be a governing class, ruling over slaves kept in line by the lash of the overseer."

And Plutarch reports as a virtue this speech of Alexander the Great, who invited to run a race with athletes, replied, "I would if I could find kings to race with."

Foolish Alexander. His empire is dust, and the very slaves he ridiculed, whipped, branded with hot irons, became through their descendants, the true conquerors. Many a Greek who has a shoe-shining parlor in America, could give Alexander a surprise. These descendants of Alexander's former slaves are now kings in their own right.

If Alexander were alive today, he would find many kings to race with, in the United States; although at that the famous military-butcher imagined that the pretty lands around the Mediterranean comprised the total extent of this earth.

"Onward the chariot of the Untarrying moves;

Nor day divulges him, nor night conceals;

Thou hear'st the echo of unreturning hooves,

And thunder of irrevocable wheels."

The Theatre

By MAURICE HENLE

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—A radical change in Broadway's make-up that will find a reverberating echo throughout the country is now coming to pass. But while it will be, as I say, a radical change, it will not be by any means a sudden one, and it will be here almost before we are aware of its existence.

The change is due entirely to what might be called a realignment in the motion picture field. There was a time not so very long ago, either, when if there was one long-run motion picture showing on Broadway, one "Covered Wagon," "Big Parade," or "Ten Commandments," it was considered somewhat of a feat. Two were unusual. Three extraordinary. And four impossible.

Close students of the cinema realize now that the "big picture" booked to stay in one theatre for a long run is at last here permanently. It is as logical a development as the five-reel feature was from the one, two and even split reel pictures of yesterday.

There are today on Broadway no fewer than seven long-run pictures. "Beau Geste" is at the Criterion. D. W. Griffith's "The Sorrows of Satan," is at the George M. Cohan. "Kid Boots" with Eddie Cantor is at the Rialto. "The Big Parade" is at the Astor. "Ben Hur" is at the Embassy. Two Vitaphone shows are featured at Warners and the Colony, with feature pictures in addition.

But this in itself, though interesting, is hardly revolutionary. Within a short time after the opening of the new Paramount Theatre in November the Rivoli Theatre since the day it opened its doors a program picture house with changes weekly, will go over to the new order of things. It will become a long run house and it is expected that James Cruze's "Old Ironsides" will inaugurate the new policy.

But even that is not all, but it is especially mentioned to show the trend the thing is taking. Besides "Old Ironsides," a theatre will have to be found for Erich von Stroheim's new picture, "The Wedding March." One will have to be found for Mauritz Stiller's "Hotel Imper-

USING LEFT-OVER COFFEE

"I have become so frugal that I just can't bear to throw away anything edible," writes a Housekeeper Reader. "So I would be grateful to you if you could tell me how to use left-over cups of coffee in dessert form."

Nothing gives me more pleasure than helping a reader beat the high cost of living by suggesting ways of using her left-overs. I receive so many letters of this nature, and I always say to myself triumphantly, after reading them, "Still more women joining the Sensible Army of Thrifty Housewives!"

Here are two good coffee recipes: Coffee Cabinet Pudding: Butter a mold thickly and sprinkle the bottom and sides with chopped nut meats. Fill the mold loosely with small pieces of stale cake, sprinkling more of chopped nut meats between the layers of cake. When the mold is full, pour over the cake a raw custard made of two eggs and one cup each of strained cof-

There are more than 400,000 corporations in the United States. It is utterly impossible even to know the names of all of them, much less to say, without investigating, the value of their securities. Yet, amazing to say, friends and neighbors will unhesitatingly give us serious advice on selling or buying securities. Nine times in ten they do not know what they are talking about.

A typical instance of the foregoing is contained in the experience of a lumberman who bought stock in a public utility company which subsequently rose in price. The lumberman was discussing his paper profits with three of his friends who were in the oil, steel and real estate business, respectively. Not one of the three had occasion to study the problem of investment securities. They had been too busy in their own lines of business.

Yet those three men unanimously advised the lumberman to sell his stock. They insisted that the price was inflated. At that moment another friend came along. He was in the investment business and specialized on the analysis of stocks and bonds. All four men turned to him with the demand that he settle the argument of whether or not the stock was inflated in price.

He thought a moment and replied: "I haven't gone into that situation deeply enough to warrant giving an opinion. You see, it is a holding company and requires lots of effort to dig out the facts. If you wish, I'll spend a day or two on it and give you an opinion later."

The only man among the five who would not give a quick, definite opinion was the only one who really knew anything about it or who was qualified to give an opinion. Why wouldn't the others think it over? They couldn't. They wouldn't know what factors to consider to determine the value of the stock. At the end of a month of thinking, the only opinion they could give would be the same old expression of a hunch, with nothing to back it up. To be sure they might be right, but they wouldn't know why, and they might also be wrong. That is why it is advisable for the investor to listen to a dependable expert before investing.

HOSPITABLE PEOPLE

"With all their rudeness the pioneer people were given to hospitality, and freely divided their rough fare with a neighbor or a stranger, and would have been offended at the offer of pay. In their settlements and forts they lived, they worked, they fought, they fasted, or suffered together in cordial harmony. They were warm and constant in their friendships.

"On the other hand they were revengeful in their resentments; the point of honor sometimes led to personal combats. If one man called another a liar, he was considered as having given a challenge which the person who received it must accept or be deemed a coward; the charge was generally answered on the spot with a blow.

"If the injured person was decidedly unable to fight the aggressor, he must get a friend to do it for him. The same thing took place on a charge of cowardice, or any other dishonorable action, a battle must follow, and the person who made the charge must fight either the person against whom it was made, or any champion who chose to espouse his cause.

"Thus circumstanced, the people in early times were much more cautious of speaking evil of their neighbors than they are at present."

AS I AM

That wife o' mine will tell you I Am peevish, petulant and proud. You see me with a laughing eye. Making a show to please the crowd. But she will tell you that I scold. The mornings when my coffee's cold.

That wife o' mine will tell you I Am careless, critical and cross. With neither taste for hat nor tie. In some things I'm a total loss. And did you gain her confidence She'd tell you I've no common sense.

That wife o' mine will tell you I Will whimper at the slightest pain And act like one about to die Until my health returns again. She'll tell you that when I'm put out.

My face takes on a baby pout. That wife o' mine will tell you I Am foolish, frivolous, forgetful; You see me with a laughing eye. But she has seen me when I'm fretful. My public pose is but a sham. The wife beholds me as I am.

New York

By Jack O'Donnell

New Yorkers are a speculative lot. They settle many big problems by the flip of a coin.

Two promoters of big spectacles recently entered into a partnership arrangement. A few days later they got a contract to stage a huge pageant and festival, the profits from which they estimated would be approximately $100,000.

The contract had hardly been signed when one of the partners decided that the other was not the sort of person who could be trusted in such a big venture. Going to his newly acquired partner he said: "One of us has got to get out. I will buy or sell. What do you offer?"

The other thought a moment then said: "We'd probably argue for days without coming to an agreement. Let's flip a coin. The fellow that loses gets out and the other carries on alone. What say?"

A coin was flipped. The disappointed member called "Heads." And when the coin came to rest "tails" were showing.

"I just flipped myself out of $50,000," said the loser with a smile. "However, tomorrow is another day."

He doesn't know yet that the coin which was supplied by the man who won—had "tails" on both sides.

One of the things about New York I love is Brooklyn Bridge. That others share this affection is evidenced by the fact that almost all visitors to Gotham ask to be taken there.

I like to go there and watch the unending procession of pedestrians going to and from Brooklyn. They number about 4,000 daily. Besides the walkers 150,000 persons go back and forth in street cars and automobiles.

It was from this bridge, you will recall, that Steve Brodie took his famous plunge. Only one man out of every million that leaps from this bridge lives to tell about it. Steve is the only one out of the last million.

Gothamites, showing out-of-town-ers about New York, like to point to the Claremont Restaurant and say: "A great spot in the old days," meaning the days when Riverside Drive, on which the building stands, was the mecca of the money barons. But few of them know that the Claremont is rich in history, that it stands on city-owned property or that George F. Norris wrote "Woodman, Spare That Tree" in its shadows. Nor does the average New Yorker tell his out-of-town friend that the Claremont section was one of Edgar Allen Poe's favorite loafing places.

Broadway—during rush hours—is No Man's Land for taxicabs. That is the Great White Way is prohibited to cruising taxis. Unattended pay wagons must comb Sixth and Eighth Avenues for customers and may turn into the Street of a Million Lights only if they are taking someone there. Because this is so many chauffeurs have resorted to the simple expedient of populating their cars with anyone who would like a few minutes' joy ride. But the pseudo passenger must agree to alight on demand. Usually these rides are short for taxis are always in demand on Broadway.

Today's Talk

CRUSHED HEARTS

Years ago I came across a lovely poem that told of how a flower, crushed under foot by the careless passerby, made no complaint, but only gave back a more beautiful fragrance in return.

I recently read the story of a blind man, who was once a noble Lord with great possessions. But in the midst of misfortune, he became the prey of the evil, the calculating and the uncaring. Soon he was stripped of all he had—even to his great castle. But there was one who was faithful and loyal—a beautiful young woman who gave her all that she might minister to his wants. And together they roamed the country, bound and held by an everlasting love.

Not until the human heart has known sorrow and suffering and has gone hungry from sacrifice, can it know the beauty and gentleness of a living love.

The crushed heart is like the flower which gives back its greatest fragrance only after its beauty and unselfishness have been challenged through hurts.

Love is the eternal essence of character. It even outlives the man or woman, as the extract of the flower outlives the flower and is able to scent the air for years after the velvet color has become as dust.

Today I sat for hours under a beautiful tree watching the early fall of the browned and reddened leaves. I thought of the buds that had been all too short a time ago, and then I thought of how these softly falling gifts of nature would soon be a part of the soil again—again to rise in richness in another spring and again add life and substance to the towering tree above me.

And so it is with the crushed heart. Its substance remains a gift immortal under the shining stars, ready to give out again and again in richer worth and beauty. Melodized, let us say, for greater giving.

SKIN TROUBLE COVERS BODY

At last finds treatment which cleared it away in few days

Badger, Minn., March 1:—"A while ago I was troubled with a skin disease, a mild case of itch, which was very distressing. It began on my leg and was most aggravating; the more I scratched it, the more it itched. Finally a number of tiny pimples formed as I soon spread all over my body. I became so bad that I did not know what to do about it and was going to consult a physician when a friend of mine suggested that I try Resinol Ointment. I bought a jar the next day and was delighted with the relief I obtained after the first application. A few more treatments and the itch was entirely gone. I have also used Resinol Soap and Ointment for blackheads and pimples and it helped wonderfully. I cannot praise Resinol enough for all the good it has done me." (Signed) Celia Stoffel, Star Route.

Modish Mitzi

MITZI SHOPS AGAIN FOR ELEANOR

Jay V. Jay

Such a pathetic letter from Eleanor. She's freezing to death and she has to write the thesis on The Ethics of Mohammedanism. Not that the two have any connection, but being otherwise engaged for the moment will Mitzi buy her some sweaters—preferably a dozen or two?

Zephyr sweaters are warm and still light enough to be worn under a heavy topcoat. Perhaps Eleanor would like the wide-striped one of green and tan with the brushed alpaca trimming. Or the zigzag one with an allover pattern in a glorious combination of colors.

A sweater dress might be more practical. The block stripes are immense in two meanings and Eleanor, being very slim, is one of the few people who could wear them. In red, perhaps, combined with beige. The other is a two-toned jumper with a wool crepe skirt.

However, let it not be said that Mitzi exceeded her authority. Eleanor wrote for a sweater and a sweater she shall have—two sweaters in fact. As to the sweater frocks, Mitzi thinks she will come back tomorrow and try a few of them on herself.

T. B. ON DECREASE IN GREENE COUNTY

Twenty-five deaths were caused by tuberculosis in Greene County last year, six less than the number accredited to that malady in 1924. This was among information disclosed at the annual meeting of Christmas seal chairmen under the Ohio Anti-Tuberculosis League which was held Thursday in Columbus.

There are nine active cases of tuberculosis for every death statistics disclose, and while the per capita cost for illness is $22 a year, not more than fifty cents is spent for health education, speakers at the meeting said.

Mrs. A. C. Turrell, chairman and Mrs. Emma McCalmont, secretary and treasurer of the Christmas seal sale in Greene County attended the convention.

PRESBYTERIAN AND REFORMED CHURCHES TO HOLD VESPER

Combination vesper services are planned by the Reformed and the Presbyterian Churches for the Fall and Winter, the second services of these two churches, at four p. m. each Sunday afternoon.

October 31st—The Presbyterian Church—Subject—"Moslem Life." November 7th—The Reformed Church—Subject—"Moslem Women, Theory and Practice." November 14th—The Presbyterian Church—Subject—"Native Measures of Reform." November 21st—The Reformed Church—Subject—"Islam and Christianity." November 28th—The Presbyterian Church—Subject—"The Power of the Gospel." December 5th—The Reformed Church—Subject—"The New Trail."

RHEUMATISM, NEURITIS, PAIN

"Heet" Relieves Instantly

With applicator attached to cork, just brush "Heet" over the pain area, whether in hands, elbows, shoulders, feet, knees, legs, back, neck or body. Instantly you feel this harmless, gloriolous, penetrating heat drive the pain, soreness and stiffness right out of the aching or swollen joint, muscle or nerve. Besides, "Heet" scatters the congestion and establishes a cure.

"Heet" contains two soothing, penetrating ingredients, too expensive to use in ordinary liniments or ointments. "Heet" is a clean, pleasant liquid; doesn't stain, blister or irritate the skin and costs only 60 cents at any drug store.

Each service will be introduced by special music and devotional periods, beginning promptly at 4 p. m. and closing at 5 p. m. The missionary societies of these two churches are co-operating in this matter and invite all who are interested in this great work to attend. Everybody is invited especially the men. The ministers of the two churches are counting on these services to fill a place for all of Xenia on Sunday afternoon, according to Rev. William H. Tilford, minister of the Presbyterian Church.

ALTOONA, Pa., Oct. 22.—Three sons of Russell Kauffman were burned to death and the parents, with an 8-month-old child, were seriously burned when fire destroyed the Kauffman home, two miles north of Osterburg, near here today, according to reports received here.

The dead boys were Homer, 6; Lester, 4, and Harold, 3. Coal oil poured on a kitchen fire caused the blaze, the reports said.

ARCHITECT HELD WITH MATE ON BOND

MINNEAPOLIS, Oct. 22.—Frank Lloyd Wright, internationally famous architect, and Madame Olga Milanoff, his Montenegrin love mate, must remain in their cells at the county jail here until an additional $10,000 bond can be provided for them.

Just as the couple, charged with violation of the Mann act, were to be released today on bond of $17,500 by the United States commissioner, Howard S. Abbott, a warrant charging them with adultery by Vladimir Hinzenberg, former husband of Madame Milanoff, was issued here.

Sufferers From Rheumatism

The writer desires the name, address of every man and woman in this town who have suffered from rheumatism during the last six months. It may be that the message I have for you will prove of value to you. A short description of just how it effects you might help.

Box 13, Care Gazette Office.

DEATH PRONOUNCED DUE TO ACCIDENT

A verdict of accidental death was given by Dr. R. L. Haines, Greene County coroner after an investigation Thursday afternoon of the shooting of Clarence M. Fulkerson, well known Spring Valley man at his home in that village early Thursday morning.

Mr. Fulkerson was accidentally killed by the discharge of a shot gun he was placing in an automobile while preparing for a trip to his farm. The load entered just below the heart and took an upward course tearing away the large blood vessels. He died of hemorrhage within a few moments, breathing only once or twice after members of his family reached his side.

Funeral services will be held at the Fulkerson home Saturday at 2 o'clock, and interment will take place in Woodland Cemetery, Xenia.

"Not Possible To Classify"

By Mack Sauer

WHAT'S THE NEWS?

Rufus D. Reaper has had a housekeeper To cook and fix corn on the ears. To can green tomatoes and fry the potatoes And throw down the hay to the steers; Her name is Amanda and she is a dandy— They've found her quite handy for years.

Now Rufus is eighty, his eyelids are weighty, Both he and his wife have poor sight, So each evening they make her go get the days paper And read until late in the night. She reads of what scandal, the latest of scandal, And how Tunney will fight his next fight.

For years they just let her read what she thought better And never requested she read A particular story of fortune or glory, Of war, of famine, or greed; They just sat in quiet, while she read of riot Or of some new diet for weevil in timothy seed.

But now, full of vigor, they both have grown eager For the newsboy to come round their way, They still like the stories of Turk and of Tories, And all that has happened that day; Yet they care not for fire, for death of a Squire, Nor destruction of Tyre, but they say:

"Don't read us the speeches, but all about 'Peaches' And Browning, the man that she sent to the showers; Oh, what has this creature, this rich woman preacher Been doing for twenty-four hours? Have they accused her of kissing? Is Ormiston missing? Have they proved he sent her the flowers.

Each evening they listen, their eyes all aglisten To the latest about the new slush, They hear of each blunder, wonder when in the thunder Old Browning will get a new crush So now their Amanda they find is a dandy, She comes in so handy in reading the mush.

I rise to protest against the instructing of clerks to sell a customer something. In a restaurant the other day I asked for a piece of apple pie.

"We have no apple pie," said the waitress, "but we have some nice beef stew."

Phone an ad to 111 tomorrow.

CHERY AND GAME PRESERVE ASSURED IN TRUAX ADDRESS

Director Truax declared he has never visited a prospective hatchery site that offers greater prospects than this. "The farm is a revelation to one who has never seen it before. It has as magnificent scenery as can be found anywhere in the world. With its fertile gorges, hills and valleys it provides a splendid location and a hatchery can be constructed at the minimum cost because of the land formations and the constant water supply.

"The only way to maintain and increase the supply of natural game in Ohio is by propagation and then liberation. A pheasant farm in Greene County can be constructed easily to provide about 10,000 pheasants annually. This county presents a great field for conservation of natural resources and propagation of wild life.

"The state director mentioned as another possibility for the farm, the erection of a series of dams in the Little Miami River intersecting the acreage. This would make an ideal fishing grounds and pave the way for fish propagation in the stream because of the purity of the water, he said.

Mr. Truax declared he subdivided the state into ten districts several years ago and has since made it his policy to build one or more hatcheries in every district and eventually game preserves.

He declared that prior to 1923 Ohio had but eight inland hatcheries and that four more are being constructed this year, one each at Indian Lake, Piqua, Buckeye Lake, and another that will be erected later at Bucyrus, so that by next spring half as many as were built in all previous years will have been constructed. It is also planned to construct four more in 1927.

"Three of these hatcheries," he said, were financed from the anglers' license fund receipts of 1925 which amount to $85,000. This is a new law and the funds are appropriated for the director of agriculture to be used in building dams, acquiring lands and titles for the state and erection of fish hatcheries.

Mr. Truax closed his talk with a discussion of what has been done by the state in eradication of bovine tuberculosis in Ohio's infested area, the corn borer and advocated drafting of legislation for reorganization of the fish and game laws of Ohio. Otherwise, he warned, some forms of animal life such as squirrels will shortly become extinct.

Following this address M. C. Smith narrated his experiences while on a recent hunting trip in the wilds of Wyoming.

The banquet was attended by about eighty members. The Rev. R. E. Brown gave the invocation. Frank Linkhart, president of the organization presided, and presented State Representative R. D. Williamson, who in turn introduced the main speaker of the evening.

TO SMOKE OR NOT? ANTIOCH QUESTION

Question of smoking at college is agitating the girls of Division B at Antioch who are preparing to take a vote in the matter similar to the one their sisters of Division A took several weeks ago.

The ballot cast by Division B girls is still secret, and it is planned to open them all at the same time. The form of the question to be considered by Division B girls in their ballot will probably be different from that on which the first vote was cast, and the decision may bother the judges, according to college officials.

Antioch authorities say that there is not much smoking among girl students at the Yellow Springs school. Questions of authorization of the practice by college authorities resulted in the vote that the girls are taking.

By students are permitted to vote under restriction.

Attorneys Endorse Judge R. L. Gowdy for Re-election as Common Pleas Judge

Judge R. L. Gowdy has been honest, fair and impartial in his work as judge, and has been energetic and prompt in the trial of cases, so that any case can be heard promptly as soon as it is ready for trial.

In eighty-five per cent of the cases reviewed by the higher courts his decisions have been affirmed, which shows a high degree of legal ability as judge.

Therefore, we feel that it will be to the best interest of the County that Judge Gowdy be retained for a second term as judge.

Joshua—Israel's New Leader
GOLDEN TEXT:—Be strong and of good courage—for Jehovah thy God is with thee whithersoever thou goest. Joshua 1:9.

LESSON TEXT:—Numbers 27:12-23; Joshua 1:1-17.

AFTER MOSES—God spoke to Joshua for a specific purpose and it was Joshua's great opportunity. Was he ready for it? Yes he was because he had remained close to God and had strong faith, his heart and mind were pure and open for God's guidance. He was born of good parents, which was greatly in his favor, and thus he had good training. He always did his work well. He and Caleb were ready to enter Canaan, after the trip of the spies, because they had perfect confidence in God, in that He would give them victory. That was forty years before this, but God had not forgotten him. God will and can always use all young people who are willing to do His will. Moses was a great teacher, and Joshua was quick and eager to learn, so that all through the pilgrimage, in the wilderness, he kept close to Moses. At last Moses blessed Joshua by placing his hands on him and praying that God bless him and make a true and brave leader. The leaders pass but the work goes on. Forty years of age was not the dead line then but rather they were in their prime. Old men still rule the world. Youth is needed for enthusiasm but old age contains cool judgment, self control, and good cool sense. After personal loss do not give up in despair but rather press on to greater things, with the fellowship and guidance of God.

BE BRAVE AMID DIFFICULTIES:—"Now arise and go over this Jordan." This was God's call to Joshua. Think of the obstacles he confronted, here was Moses dead and that naturally would have a great influence over the people. Would they trust him as they had trusted Moses? He must form an army to conquer the Canaanite giants from this discouraged people, the river was its deepest and swiftest at this time of year, the soldiers must take their armor and arms, if they had any, but they could not swim this swift river now. If the army could swim over that would leave the women and children behind and at this place they were facing the strongest city of the enemy. Even a brave man would think if confronted with these conditions. But Joshua was not discouraged. God was with him. He was firm in his belief that God was calling him and that gave the necessary courage and faith therefore nothing would daunt him. The Lord's promises are not a means to laziness, but are programs of great urgent activity.

MOSES AND JOSHUA ALIKE IN PERFORMING GOD'S TASK: Joshua had no fears and he trusted God fully. Let us study the boundaries of this promised land, on the east was the Euphrates river, the Mediterranean Sea on the west, the Arabian wilderness where they had wandered for forty years on the south, and the Lebanon mountains on the north. This was the land where Abraham, Isaac and Jacob had lived. These plans were given to Joshua and they could be followed as surely as the blueprints of an architect. What often seems an aircastle of a young person is really the plan of God. Be sure they are God's. He will tell you if you are in doubt. God is with you as surely as He was with Moses and Joshua, merely to a different degree.

"Be strong and of good courage." Divine promise, presence and power do not dispense with human courage. True courage is fearless. The right but fears to do wrong. That last picture shows how Joshua will conquer all his enemies. The man has lost his sword and shield and is fleeing before Joshua. This is partly because Joshua is naturally bold, but it is chiefly because God is with him and because God has chosen him to be successful and victorious in all his battles. Look at that picture of the dead Moses again. Do you see the angels? What do they mean? They were there to bury Moses, and they were also ready to give courage and faith to Joshua. They did another thing, too, that you will learn about in the next story. Now Joshua remembered all the wonderful things God did for Moses, and that the spirit of the great leader passed into him. What were difficulties to one who had God with him and for him? He was told that he should divide up the territory among the different tribes. Joshua's name at first was Hoses, meaning "help," but it was changed to Jehoshua, or Joshua, which means "the help" or "salvation to God." We may be sure he will succeed if he remains true to his name.

NOW IS MY CHANCE:—General Grant, in his memoirs, tells how he secured his first promotion. He was sorry to hear, by a private letter, that a neighbor boy at West Point had failed in his examination and was coming home. Grant took time by the forelock, and going to his congressman, got him to promise him the first vacancy, and thus he secured the coveted place. So there is a just ambition that is the secret of true greatness. It is not by getting through the solicitation of friends, titles to our names.—Exchange.

PICTURES AND DREAMS:—Men, from the time they are little boys, see ahead of them some goal. They aspire to be president of the United States, a justice of the Supreme Court, a great surgeon, a great artist or a great business man. They dream of their future and count each month as precious time to be filled with acts that shall help in the carrying out of their ambition. They let nothing stand in the way, and thus we hear of boys who have been rail-splitters and canal boys reaching the highest office within the gift of the people, or of some poor little peasant who becomes a great painter.—Exchange.

At last they were driven into their stronghold, Avaris, and beleaguered there. Stubbornly and long they held the strong walls, fighting fiercely on onslaughts upon the besieger's camp, and dashing out in warships on the canals around the city; but in the end all was of no avail. Unwillingly they had to loose their hold upon the land, and sullenly they withdrew beyond the deserts from which they had come in the days long gone by. And so it fell that there arose a new king over Egypt which knew not of Joseph, and many kings after him whose only thought of the men of Israel in Goshen would be that they were friends of the hated outland princes who had been driven forth from the land.

So for generations Israel lived in the shadow, as they had ere-while lived in the sunshine, and were despised and hated where once they had been welcomed. And during these days Egypt became a mighty conquering power, and sent her hosts abroad over Palestine and Syria, even unto the great river Euphrates; and all the nations of the world bowed down before her star, and kissed the ground before her Pharaoh, as before God manifest in flesh.

Now it befell that after many years there came to the throne of Egypt a Pharaoh whose name was Ramses, Ramses the Great, men call him still; but he was not, save in pride and ambition. He was a fierce soldier, and, above all other things, a mighty builder.

Everywhere, throughout the land, he reared vast temples to the gods, and in the pride of his heart he set before them great statues of himself, hewn out of mighty blocks of granite, such as have never been handled by any other men in all the world, either before or since. For the carrying out of these great works he cast his eyes upon the men of Israel in Goshen. They were taken from their shepherding and husbandry and forced to bend their backs to all the bitter labour of Pharaoh's building. Under the burning sun, and the cruel lash of the slave-driver, they moulded bricks, and dragged great blocks of red granite and white limestone and heaved huge stones up the long slopes of earth till they reached their place upon the wall. Two store cities in especial they built for their tyrant, Elithom, the sacred city of Atum, god of the Setting Sun, and Ramses, the name-city of a mighty monarch.

Yet, though many died in these labours and many were broken, not all the cruelty of Pharaoh could diminish the numbers of the men of Israel. Indeed it seemed that oppression only made them stronger. Then the cruel heart of the King was shaken with fear, because the number of this race of slaves increased continually; and he sent forth a cruel and wicked command. "Every son of the Hebrews that is born," he said, "ye shall cast into the river, and every daughter ye shall save alive." For so he weened that ere long the race of Israel should be cut off altogether out of the land.

GO TO CHURCH SUNDAY

You cannot get away from the fact that this city which to live if it had no churches. Neither have you any right to hedge and say "I am only one person—it makes no difference whether I go or not." You must remember that the church is made up of individuals.

Christianity was intended not only to bring people in closer touch with their Creator but to also help in the uplift of the human race. Human service is the underlying principle of the church.

The church yearns to assure men that she wants to be helpful in every possible way. Like her Master, she is in our midst. "Not to be ministered unto, but to minister." Her ministers are willing to kneel at every death bed and stand by every grave, speaking the Gospel of life. Even more eagerly do they desire to serve the people through the years of youth and health, so that the comfort of Christ would be no strange word when in the hour of extreme need. But don't wait until the hour of trial for the blessed ministry of the church.

Go to church Sunday.

SEEKST THOU GREAT THINGS?

Oh, the greatness of little things!
Just a line on a post-card, but it changed a whole day's drudgery into a dream of peace.
Just a handshake—no word was spoken—but, in some way, it soothed the wounded soul!
Just a cluster of wild flowers placed in a sick child's faded fingers, but it inspired a prayer of gratitude which winged its way to the throne of God.

Just a word of appreciation lightly spoken where two paths met, but it lit the lamp of hope in a pilgrim's heart.

Just a smile, but it transmuted the dark mists of the moment into a rainbow of brightest beauty.
Just a little act of courtesy, but it caused a stranger to say: "Oh, how good is the heart of the world!"

Seekest thou great things, O my master? Let me not make them out of the opportunities that dot the pathway of your life.

ATTEMPT EMBARGO

LONDON, Oct. 22.—A new effort to tie up the transportation of foreign coal was being made today by the striking coal miners.

The executive committee of the miners' federation met with the general council of the Trades Union Congress, asking that the railroad and transport unions again consider the possibility of laying an embargo against handling foreign coal.

By THE RT. REV. JAMES E. FREEMAN, DD., LL. D.

"THE UNCHANGING CHRIST"
"Jesus Christ, the same yesterday and today and forever." Hebrews 13:8.

Judged in terms of sheer popularity and universal favor, Jesus Christ stands supreme in human thought today. Living, as we do, in a period of sweeping changes where systems and practices that are time honored are swept away overnight, this supreme personality maintains its place and increasingly demands the reverent study and devotion of thoughtful men the world over. However, critics or scholars may interpret the meaning of His life and teachings, yes, however confused His accredited exponents may be, still the fact remains that this great Master appeals today as never before to every type and class, and His influence upon human thought and action grows and expands with every recurring period. A modern distinguished writer maintains that the most striking thing about Jesus is His originality. No one questions the uniqueness of His place among the great religious teachers. To our mind the most singular thing about Him is His unflinching persistence down the long centuries of time. At various times men have sought to impair His progress and to impair His influence.

Voltaire, in a period of speculation and doubt, maintained that the institution of the Christian church would not last out another 50 years of time. In another period of large scientific research, with its attending disclosures, men feared for the prestige and performance of Christian institutions and wondered whether its sovereign teaching could continue to hold its place of sacred vision and power. When scholarship gave itself more completely to the study of the Scriptures, bringing with it much of value and yet shifting old positions that had been regarded as permanent, it for one while disturbed those who felt that the old footing stones were being displaced. It is safe to say that nothing that either science or scholarship has contributed has in any wise impaired the personal influence which Jesus continues to exercise over human thought down to the latest hour. Even the colossal catastrophe of a world war, with all its horrors and attending brutality, could not weaken the hold He has upon the human heart and mind.

There are many today who, lacking a broad vision of human concerns, seem to feel that there is danger that the influence of Jesus is somehow or other being impaired, and the institutions He called into existence threatened with early dissolution. A more careful study of the situation discloses the fact that His grip upon the minds of men is, as a matter of fact, stronger today than it has ever been before. It may be that the world is at times unresponsive to a stern dogmatism or to the excesses of institutionalism. There are evidences on every hand that it is responsive to that kind of expression of faith in a living and ### compelling Master, where His personality and teachings are adequately and consistently set forth.

Lincoln's declaration that he was in search of a church that in its very teaching and practice represented nothing more or less than Jesus Christ and Him crucified, is but another form of expression of the world's yearning today. The over-accident upon the institution's importance and authority must give place to a new accent upon the supreme personality that it essays to represent.

An exceedingly clever woman said recently, when asked to join a religious institution: "I will do so, providing it does not take away from me my 'Christ.' It was a significant observation. A striking thing about Jesus is His modernism. The utter facility with which He fits into every age and every condition of life makes Him a modernist in the best sense of the word. He is a modernist, because He meets and answers modern conditions and modern needs. To the disillusioned and disappointed, to the sorrowing and confused, to the tempted and sinning, He comes with a message that is so adaptable that it fits every condition and meets every situation. The religion of the Christian church is the religion of a personality. Its devotion may express itself through many and varied forms, from the simplest to the most ornate, but the churches of every name need to be solemnly reminded today that their compelling power, as well as their security reside in making evident to men and women that their one supreme purpose is to manifest Jesus Christ and Him crucified.

STUDENT GETS FROM ONE TO 20 YEARS FOR MANSLAUGHTER

Trial Comes To Abrupt End With Student Found Guilty

CLEVELAND, Oct. 22.—Ermil "Frenchy" Balanescu, young drug clerk, is in County Jail here today under sentence of one to twenty years in Mansfield Reformatory. He was convicted yesterday of having caused the fatal poisoning of his sweetheart, Dorothy Elizabeth Kirk.

Balanescu's trial on a manslaughter charge, which lasted nearly two weeks, came to an abrupt end yesterday afternoon when a jury of six men and six women found him to be guilty after deliberating three hours and a half. Within fifteen minutes sentence had been pronounced upon the youth and he was back in jail to await his trip to the reformatory.

Dorothy Kirk died in a hospital August 22. When "Frenchy" self-styled "poor, misguided kid," met her last spring she was suffering from a stomach disorder. The state charged that the youthful suitor, posing as a doctor, gave to her different medicinal potions while health gradually failed her. After her sudden death, police found in Dorothy's rooms several pills which Balanescu admitted he had bought at a drug store. The coroner's autopsy showed that the girl had been taking these pills and that they contained a poison which caused her death. The defense of Balanescu was that he never knowingly gave to her any poison and that he lied to her about being a doctor only because he loved her and wanted her to think he was somebody.

FESS AND HOOVER ON SPRINGFIELD MEETING PROGRAM

Secretary of Commerce Herbert Hoover in an address at Memorial Hall, Springfield, Thursday night told Ohio voters that the achievements of the Coolidge administration and the necessity for carrying out policies that have made those achievements possible, demonstrate the need of returning a Republican majority to Congress this year.

He reviewed in detail the efforts and successes of reconstruction after the World War by the Harding and Coolidge administrations. He said "the impending election involves whether the national administration shall be crippled in its work; whether we shall have consistent continuous resolute economic and governmental policies; whether policies by which we have come thus far are to be halted, and whether we are to substitute two years of confusion and hesitation in the completion of a great national task."

Control of either branch of the congress by the Democrats means as a result of the election, means a deadlock, he said in the progress of governmental policies. The necessity for one of the political parties to be entrusted with responsibility for national policies has come to be a "fundamental to successful conduct of a democracy" he said. Secretary Hoover discussed the protective tariff, employment and wages, crediting high wages and general employment to effects of the protective tariff. The address of Secretary Hoover was preceded by a short talk by Senator S. D. Fess.

"EARTH'S GREATEST CONFLICT NEAR"

—It's Necessity And Outcome—Deliverance For The People!

That we are in a great tribulation period is acknowledged by all thinking men. Our day is marked on the one hand, by great social upheavals, labor unrest, distress of nations, crime waves, profiteering and economic chaos. Just following a war to end war, Europe is again an armed camp. Every day the problems of government grow more complex, with manifest inability of our wisest men to cope with these problems.

On the other hand, we live in a day of great achievement and progress, a day of learning and discovery. Our lives are crowded with blessings unknown to our grandfathers. The future portends much more. Every day brings a new surprise.

Jesus said that such conditions would mark His second presence, the object of which is to end the old social order and to establish a new upon the ruins. Thus the "Old World" ends. The "New World" begins. The impending conflict will reveal to the people that this new social order is God's Kingdom for which Christians have long prayed.

Its establishment means world-wide peace, joy and happiness; it means an opportunity of ETERNAL LIFE for the living and a return of the dead from the grave; it means LIFE, perfect, limitless, with a re-generated race on a restored earth; with a corrected climate and life-perpetuating food; with a GOVERNMENT that will satisfy the desires of every creature. It is here, right at the door. The portals of a new age are swinging open and many will enter and never die.

Proof of the above will be presented from a scriptural standpoint, in an unsectarian, undenominational MASS MEETING, addressed by

WHAT'S FLATTERY?

How is the ORDINARY man or woman to actually KNOW when they're being flattered! HOW can they discriminate between this flattery and KIND WORDS? Does one have to be POOR, withOUT influence, homely or without standing in order to be SURE that words of praise are REAL and without the sinister seasoning of flattery?

Where does friendliness and flattery begin? HOW should the recipient of honeyed words, friendly, gracious statements RECEIVE them? Should they blush, stammer, shuffle their feet, say: "Oh, Pshaw!" and try to look modest or should they swell slightly, bow gracefully and allow the crown of commendation to rest lightly on the happy bean?

These are questions which I have had to ask myself several times—a NUMBER of times, in fact—just here lately. The cause being the way we conduct this store!

It's a fat that we HOPE what we HEAR is NOT Flattery! We HOPE and have been trying HARD to DESERVE these things but doggoned if it isn't hard at times to do just ALL we'd LIKE to do in the way of making this shopping point bigger, better and of more service. But we aim to keep on trying — EVERY DAY!

CHAPTER 33

LUELLA DISCONCERTED

Luella Loder, in a smart traveling suit of pongee silk, and looking very pretty and determined, stood in the lobby of the hotel, her luggage all about her, and faced her angry aunt with equanimity.

"Even if he did send me my ticket, why shouldn't I come down here, if I'd a mind to? After the grind of the studios back in New York, I tell you the prospect of a little holiday was fascinating. Why shouldn't I be here?"

Her aunt spluttered:

"It's disgraceful! That I have to earn my own living! Well, maybe. But until I find a husband that'll have to continue, won't it? Unless you and uncle want me—"

"Want you?" gurgled her angry relative. "I tell you I'm disgusted with you. Chasing the man down here—and he a criminal, to boot!"

"To boot-leg, I think you mean," corrected Miss Luella, with maddening composure. "Well, I don't call it a crime, and neither in your heart do you. He's got off with a fine, so why worry? And really I don't care to hear too much criticism of my future husband."

"Your—husband?" Mrs. Wade's angry eyes widened. "So you're going to marry Rogers, are you? Even with that black mark against him?"

"Black mark nothing!" retorted Miss Luella. "The man has pots of money, and I'm quite proud enough of him to become his wife. I'm sick of slaving."

"Huh?" Mrs. Wade tossed her head. "I've never seen you slaving. But you make the men work right enough!"

"That's what I intend to do in the future," came back the composed answer. "Now don't let's have a scene. I'm here for several days and if my future husband wants to foot the bills, why not?"

She sailed majestically into the bedroom that she had reserved by cable, and proceeded to unpack. She then sent for Mary Forrest.

"Aunt's as mad as a wet hen, because John Rogers sent me my ticket. But don't pay any attention to her. Just hand up these frocks, my dear. And stick those silk things in the bureau—that's right."

Luella then made inquiries about Philip Andover.

"I hear he's been quite attentive?" She shot a sharp glance at her uncle's secretary. "You're foolish, when you could really do much better. The man's a pauper, and he hasn't even got his health."

Mary bent her head over one of Luella's trunks, to hide the quick flush that had risen.

"I heard he was after the Stuyvesant heiress up in Pinehurst. She's a pert child, and I dislike her. I'm glad to hear you cut her out, though I'll bet she drags her people on to Cuba, after him."

Luella then spoke of her own part in the picture that was to be "shot" down there.

"Rogers is backing it. I'm lucky."

That day the Wade party was bidden to a turtle picnic, given by a wealthy resident of the town. Luella slipped into a charming frock of palest blue. Down on her smartly shingled golden locks she drew a drooping picture hat.

When John Rogers, no longer daunted by his recent exposure, called to escort her to this feast, his eyes dilated. She was beautiful—and chic.

He told her so. He sat beside her in an adoring attitude, aboard the Nassau launch that took the seventy guests to the island where the picnic was to be held.

While numerous servants were carrying ashore provisions for the party, the guests bathed in the clear blue water. Luella's bathing suit caused quite a thrill, so ultra-modish was it in its cut, so perfect was her figure.

Afterwards a roaring fire was lit upon the sands, and the turtle was set on to stew.

A bar (which did much business) was established in the shadow of a palm.

After the savory turtle had been apportioned into bits, and eaten with sauces and with sherry, the guests ate cheese and quava jelly. Then came coffee.

The party wandered in pairs and groups about the island. Philip Andover contrived to slip away with Mary.

They had started out on the launch a little late, so already it was after three o'clock.

"We don't go back until the moon has risen," he informed her, glad—so glad to have her to himself.

They all met later at an alfresco dinner on the sands. Native singers sang romantic ditties for the edification of the picnicers.

John Rogers was with Miss Luella Loder. Things had "marched" with some rapidity that day, and Luella was in high fettle.

The moon, shining down on a sea of silvery blue, flung magic over everything. Luella's dreams, however, were intensely practical. She had investigated Rogers' fortune and was quite determined that she should be controller of it. Apart from his bootlegging activities—and these had not been confined to the Bahamas as a starting-point, but sprang from other points as well—he had made lots of money on his cattle-station back in the Australian blocks.

Not that Luella ever would live there. Oh, no! She would grace the playgrounds of the world—and that meant Europe. She would patronize her aunt, and accept no further slights from that outspoken lady. Ah! wealthy she would be. And wealth meant power.

The return offered further opportunities for Rogers' ardor.

"We're engaged, aren't we?" whispered Luella. She practical, when, in a dark corner of the launch, he slipped his arm about her.

kind to her. Only the publicity won't do you any good."

Luella burst into nervous, angry tears.

"I think you're hateful, coming in here and bailing me."

But Mrs. Wade was not to be touched so easily. She was irritated with her money-grabbing and self-seeking niece.

"I think the best thing we can do is clear out of the place," she gloomily announced. "Mrs. Rogers is ill. But when she's well enough to talk to anybody, I'm afraid you'll only put your foot in it worse than you've already done. So we'd better all go on to Cuba, right away."

The idea suited Miss Luella. Before they left, however, she contrived to have an interview with Rogers.

She had planned to act like an outraged goddess, but at sight of the man's broken look even her hard heart melted a little, if such a strange phenomenon were possible.

"You've behaved abominably—"

"Don't say more, Luella!" Tears stood in his eyes. "I didn't mean to deceive you. There were lots of times when it was on the tip of my tongue to tell you—"

She interrupted with a sarcastic: "And what about that evening at the El Fey Club, when your wife and Mrs. Andover appeared? I asked you then if you were married, and you flatly denied anything of the kind. You made a fool of me—"

"I loved you, Luella. I love

"Indeed? So much that you would have ruined my reputation by taking me on that precious honeymoon you spoke of—Spain—the East—ha! ha!"

He said gently:

"But I meant to go to Paris first, and get a divorce. I swear I did. You must believe me."

"And what about that poor creature in there?" She inclined her head in the direction of the hotel, where the sick woman lay.

A dull flush rose to his cheeks.

"I've been a cad, but I've never kept her short of money. She's the home-body type, and I couldn't cope with that. We were ordinary folks, Luella, and we never hit it off. She'd no ambitions. Couldn't rise with me. She hated change and travel. I—I sort of grew away from her."

Luella could well believe it.

He went on:

"I never treated her badly, in the money sense. She was welcome to all I had, except—except my company. I—I got so sick and tired of my marriage, Luella, I haven't lived with her in years and years."

His listener began to feel a little mollified.

"If you'll only let me keep your friendship?" He was humble, pleading, almost abject. "I'd be so proud—and honored. And if I can help in a financial way, oh, you can count on me, Luella!"

There were actually tears in his eyes as he made this offer.

She was touched. The thought of money always touched her, if the truth be told.
